JOHN B. MORAN'S RALLYING CRY TO PARTY AND PEOPLE.

WITH A UNITED PARTY, with undivided loyalty to each other, fighting, each of us to the limit of his strength, shoulder to shoulder against our foe, success for our entire ticket is within our grasp.

This is a contest for the rights of the people. We must make no compromise with their enemies.—JOHN B. MORAN in letter of acceptance of Democratic nomination for Governor.

MORAN VICTORY LEADERS' SLOGAN

1 Killed, 1 Missing; 8 Hurt on Hudson as 2 STEAMERS CRASH

Big Vessels Meet in Collision in Fog Before Dawn To-day.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—One man was killed, one was missing at a late hour and eight others were injured in a head-on collision on the Hudson River, off Tivoli, N. Y., before dawn to-day, between the Albany steamer Adirondack and the Troy steamer Saratoga.

Following the terrific impact of the two big boats, which hurled many of the passengers from their berths, there was a wild panic, in which women were knocked down and injured. Some of the frantic passengers, thinly clothed, were prevented from leaping into the water by the officers of the ships.

The Dead.

SHERMAN, TERENCE, Melrose, N. Y., oiler on board the Saratoga.

The Missing.

HORTON, GEORGE, New York, head clerk on board the Saratoga.

The Injured.

COLEMAN, J. K., Martin, N. Y., on board the Saratoga.
EARKINS, JOSEPH, New York, on board the Saratoga.
HASKINS, MARTIN, Manchester, N. H., on board the Saratoga.
LANDRICK, JOHN, first mate on board the Adirondack, burned on legs and arms by escaping steam.
PECKHAM, J. A., Brooklyn, N. Y.
SLAWSON, FRANK, assistant freight clerk on the Adirondack.
STEARNS, S. W., Brooklyn, N. Y., on Saratoga.

Panic Follows Crash.

The Adirondack, which left New York last evening with over one hundred passengers, was steaming up the river on its way to Albany, while the Saratoga was on the down trip. They were endeavoring to pass each other in the narrow channel when the Adirondack was struck on the port side, near the bow, and was ripped open for about 150 feet.

The damage done was above the water line, however, and the vessel was able to keep afloat. The steamer Onteora went to the rescue of the passengers of the Adirondack, most of whom left their berths in a panic when the shock occurred.

The passengers were taken to Hudson where they arrived about 3:30 o'clock, and took trains to their various destinations.

When the Montreal express arrived in the Grand Central depot to-day it carried eighty-six of the passengers taken ashore from the Saratoga, many of them still weak from the shock and injuries received in the collision.

CUBAN SUITOR SLAYS GIRL WHO SPURNED HIM

ADMITTING CRIME HE SAYS THE REVOLVER FAILED WHEN HE TRIED SUICIDE.

Because Mabel V. Williams, a seventeen-year-old negro girl, refused to wed him, Herman C. Wiles, a twenty-one-year-old Cuban, employed as a Pullman car porter, shot and killed the girl to-day at the office of her employer, Sedgewick H. Hunter, an expressman, at No. 140A Northampton street, South End. The police of the East Dedham street station, where Wiles is locked up, say that he admits the shooting and says that he is glad he did it.

The shooting occurred at 10:15 a. m. to-day. Wiles walked into the express office, where the Williams girl is employed as a bookkeeper.

Says He Was "Thrown Down."

John Tharston, who was in the office at the time, said that Wiles rebuked the Williams girl for not meeting him last night when she had agreed to do so. Thurston says that the girl replied that she would do as she liked. Wiles then left the place, and Thurston followed him out. Thurston alleges that Wiles told him that he had been "thrown down" and he was going to kill himself.

Wiles's story is that he went to an eating house conducted by one Dorr nearby and had breakfast. Returning to the express office, he again quarrelled with the girl and after a few words pulled a thirty-eight-calibre revolver and, holding the girl close to him, fired three shots. One of these entered her brain, two more penetrating the right breast. She died instantly.

Failed at Suicide.

Wiles then ran to his room at No. 180 Northhampton street, where, he says, he tried to commit suicide by shooting, but his revolver would not work. He hid the gun under his bed, where it was later found by the police.

Miss Williams was the daughter of a Mrs. Daucey, colored, who keeps the lodging house where Wiles lived. Wiles told the police to-day that he and the Williams girl were engaged at one time, but she went South last Winter and after her return a few weeks ago had been cool toward him.

Meant to Kill Her.

Wiles said that finding that he could not kill himself with the revolver, he returned to the express office. Upon appearing there he was detained by James Converse of No. 19 Notre Dame street, who was attracted to the scene by the sound of the shots, and later turned over to Patrolman Cornelius Reagan. He was taken to the Dedham street station and booked on the charge of murder.

Wiles is a good appearing young fellow. His skin is light and he appears to be well educated and in his right mind. He told the police that he shot the girl and meant to kill her because she spurned his love.

20 HURT IN STEEL PLANT EXPLOSION

CHICAGO, Oct. 13.—An explosion, in which twenty men are reported to have been injured, two of them fatally, occurred to-day at the plant of the Illinois Steel Company in South Chicago. Tons of molten metal were scattered in all directions and a huge converter was wrecked.

Enthusiastic Reception of Letter to Chairman Feeney, and Confidence Expressed in Triumph at the Polls---Ratification Meeting in Faneuil Hall Tuesday Night.

In the publication to-day of the letter of John B. Moran, accepting the Democratic nomination for Governor of Massachusetts, the leaders of the party have heard and accepted the battle cry with which they are to unite and march forward in a determined fight for victory.

The strong, manly letter of the standard bearer of the Democratic party, as well as that of the Independence League and the Prohibition party, has proven an inspiration to those who are heart and soul in the movement to do away with the old regime in this State and place at the head of the government men who really represent the people.

The campaign, which has for its object the dethronement of Governor Guild, Lieutenant-Governor Draper and the rest of the State officials who hold the reins of government to-day will start in Faneuil Hall on next Tuesday evening with an impetus that is bound to have gratifying results.

Letter Wins Praise.

Many of the leaders of the Democratic party and men who are acting independently have come out to-day in strong commendation of the letter of Mr. Moran. In this letter he strikes the keynote of the campaign that is to be waged in this vigorous sentence:

"With a united party, with undivided loyalty to each other, fighting, each of us to the limit of his strength, shoulder to shoulder against our foe, success for our entire ticket is within our grasp."

Among those who have expressed themselves in hearty accord with the sentiments expresed by Mr. Moran in his letter are Colonel A. C. Drinkwater, William F. McClellan and former Senator William A. Nye, the last named of whom is a Republican. He says that the letter will win Republican votes.

BROWN IS PLEASED.

E. Gerry Brown, who is Mr. Moran's running mate, and who is creating great enthusiasm in the labor world of the State, is delighted with the Moran letter, and he will use every ounce of strength to further the election of the head of the ticket.

Although plans for the big opener are still in the making, it was said authoritatively this afternoon that the Hon. John F. Fitzgerald, Mayor of Boston, will either preside or be among the principal speakers.

Shock Coming for Scoffers.

There will be oratorical talent in plenty, and people who have been laughing at what they supposed to be the sad plight of the cause of the people in Massachusetts will receive a shock that may put them out of the running until the battle of the ballots has been definitely decided.

Just how many speeches Mr. Moran will make in the two weeks of hard fighting it could not be said late to-day.

Mr. Moran himself desires to meet the people as much as possible from now until the time comes to count their votes. He wants to talk to them right out from the shoulder about political conditions in Massachusetts quite as he talked to the people of Suffolk just before they sent him to the district attorney's office. His letter explains his ideas on the subject of his campaign.

"The campaign," Granville S. MacFarland said to-day, "will be red hot. It will be vigorously fought from our side and there will be no quarter. Properly enough, it will be opened in Faneuil Hall, where other memorable battles for the people have been begun."

To Engage Halls and Theatres.

The campaign managers were not able to-day to give out a list of rallies and engagements throughout the State. They are waiting for lists of open dates in the town halls and city theatres. When that has been obtained early next week there will be "things doing" immediately.

One thing is assured, there will be no sloth and no lethargy in the gubernatorial campaign of John B. Moran.

TOOK POISON DESPITE WIFE AND DAUGHTER

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—Dr. Eugene Van Ness, who, his wife told the police, had recently met with heavy financial losses, committed suicide by swallowing poison in his laboratory on West Thirty-first street last night while his wife and stepdaughter struggled with him to prevent the deed.

LEADERS INSPIRED BY MORAN LETTER

Here are comments on Mr. Moran's letter of acceptance of the Democratic nomination for Governor by prominent men in State politics:

E. Gerry Brown,

Candidate for Lieutenant-Governor.

Mr. Moran sounds the keynote of the campaign.

It is the rights of the people against the aggressions of special privilege. His reference to the unequal opportunity which faces a poor man who is named for office, compared to that which a candidate backed by unlimited resources enjoys, is timely and true. Realizing that Mr. Moran has broken down his health trying to serve the people honestly and faithfully and thereby has little reserve strength that he should draw upon, I shall do the best I can for him in this campaign myself.

I shall work for Mr. Moran, the platform and the whole ticket. His whole letter should be an inspiration to every true Democrat and honest citizen.

William C. Lovering,

Republican Congressman from Taunton.

The character of Mr. Moran's statement is very pleasing to the Republicans, and we are prepared to meet his issues on the stump. He has very cleverly worded the situation with a good deal of conservatism. I do not expect that the statement, which appears to have been forced, will accomplish much.

William F. McClellan,

President of the Democratic City Committee.

Mr. Moran's statements are both strong and will appeal to the voters in a manner which will bring to the party greater results than were expected. He has demonstrated that he can act for himself, as well as do his own thinking. His acceptance of the Democratic nomination will inspire confidence in every Democrat and, so far as Boston is concerned, we shall do all in our power to elect him.

Thomas A. Mullen,

Member of the Schoolhouse Committee.

Mr. Moran's letter to the Democratic convention is of the right kind and

MORAN ACCEPTING NOMINATION GIVES RALLYING CRY TO PEOPLE

HIS FORMAL LETTER SENT TO CHAIRMAN FEENEY OF DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION.

John B. Moran sent last night to John P. Feeney, chairman of the Democratic State convention, the following letter, accepting the Democratic nomination for Governor:

Boston, Oct. 12, 1906.

John P. Feeney, Esq., Chairman Democratic State Convention, and Delegates of the Convention:

Gentlemen:

I ACCEPT the nomination tendered me by the Democratic convention and now express my appreciation of the high honor the Democracy of the State has conferred on me in placing its standards in my care.

Your platform of principles coincides with that published by me in July. Every plank in it was known to the Democrats who in caucus elected delegates instructed in my favor and for the platform.

The unanimity with which you nominated me demonstrates your faithfulness to the people, whose representatives you were.

Upon some non essentials in the present campaign you differed.

I have no quarrel with you upon that.

Every man is entitled to his own opinion as to who is the most suitable candidate for the presidential contest in 1908.

I believe it to be too early to make a choice and therefore exercise my right to remain neutral until the proper time for a choice arrives.

I am attached in no way to either Mr. Bryan or Mr. Hearst.

Mr. MacFarland and Mr. Williams know that I vetoed the suggestion that Mr. Bryan speak for me in Boston. Mr. MacFarland and Mr. Eddy know that I vetoed the suggestion that Mr. Hearst speak for me in Boston.

State Fight Not a National One.

This is to be a State fight, not a national one.

Bryanism and Hearstism must be eliminated from the contest.

The struggle is to be one for our principles against those of our common enemy, the present organization of the Republican party.

Let us keep this issue always in mind.

Let past differences be forgotten. Falsehoods upon falsehoods have been widely circulated by a hostile press for the sole purpose of alienating us from each other.

Words have been misquoted and twisted out of shape; quarrels where none existed have been manufactured until they seemed to actually have living existence; turmoil and chaos have been vividly pictured until no man knew whether he was reading fact or fiction.

These are now happily things of the past.

With a united party, with undivided loyalty to each other, fighting, each of us to the limit of his strength, shoulder to shoulder against our foe, success for our entire ticket is within our grasp.

This is a contest for the rights of the people. We must make no compromise with their enemies.

We must accept no pecuniary assistance from corporations.

We must purchase by usual political methods no adherence to our cause. In recent years, even by our own party, the ballots' benefit to a candidate has cost, in extravagant advertising, from fifty to one hundred thousand dollars.

By this system of campaigning the wealthy man has an advantage over his poorer neighbor.

This is an evil which we must eradicate.

Manhood, not wealth, should merit the ballot's favor.

Possible to Elect the Whole Ticket.

I regret my inability to pay all the reasonably necessary expenses for an economical and properly conducted campaign, but so far as I may be able, I shall contribute.

There should, of course, be a speaking campaign.

Let all Democratic speakers have equal opportunities.

There must be no discrimination. My own weakened physical condition unfits me for such platform service as I have in the past given in contests in which I took part.

An occasional speech is all I can promise, my physician tells me, without permanent injury to my already broken health.

In addition to this sufficient reason, I am not forgetful of the obligations which, as District Attorney, I owe to the citizens of Suffolk District, not even for the Governorship, to neglect to perform all the duties of my office.

This obligation I must perform.

Unfaithfulness in that would not be a recommendation for higher honors.

Victory lies within our camp. Our opponents are divided. We are united.

A long pull and a strong pull together will place our entire list of candidates in office.

With renewed assurances of my appreciation of the honor you have conferred on me, I am, Yours respectfully,

JOHN B. MORAN.

MORAN TO LAWSON: "FIGHT ON TO END"

In an open letter, issued at the same time as the one accepting the Democratic nomination, John B. Moran replies to Thomas W. Lawson, who advised him to withdraw from the fight. Mr. Moran writes:

"BOSTON, Oct. 12, 1906.

"Mr. Thomas W. Lawson:

"Dear Sir: I am in receipt of your letter and because of its publication in this morning's papers I have concluded to publish my reply.

"I appreciate your kindly motive in stating facts and tendering advice as to the course which I should, under the circumstances, pursue.

"I realize as fully as you do the amount and the nature of the antagonism which I am to meet from the combined corporations, their grafting agents and subservient tools.

"I never realized until now, however, the almost helpless political condition in which they are able to put a man by the influence which they wield over the press, the political leader and the people.

Three Courses Open.

"They possess unlimited money, they control thousands and thousands of men. With the same calm demeanor with which you would order a box of cigars their agents outline the political possibilities of their friendship and disclose the almost inevitable results of their antagonism. In effect they say yield in friendly alliance and success is assured, or hold aloof and we will deal you political death. Under such circumstances a man may adopt one of three courses:

"First, he may yield, sell himself and be faithless to every principle which he has advocated.

"Second, he may refuse the proffered alliance and retire from the contest.

"Third, he may refuse the proffered alliance and remain in the contest bidding defiance to their power.

"The first course would be adopted by a venal man, whether weak or strong in character.

"The second course would be adopted by an honest man, a little timid, a little over cautious, whose pugnacious characteristics were not well developed.

"The third course would be adopted by an honest man, pugnacious in disposition, fearless of consequences, possessing an abiding faith in the justice of his cause and a firm belief in his ability to win.

CANNOT ACCEPT ADVICE.

"You advise me to adopt the second course. Without impugning your motives, for I know you to be my friend, I will not accept that advice.

"The third course is mine. Never for an instant have I seriously thought of adopting either of the other two.

"The petty struggles of the Bryan and the Hearst factions, the unloosed ill-feelings existing between the Boston factions and the mistaken but honest efforts of my friends to aid my candidacy have caused me little and only temporary annoyance.

"With one's back against the wall facing a destructive tiger no man cares for the gusts of wind and dust which nature hurls in his direction. With eye steadily fixed on the real danger he waits and watches for the final grapple which will leave him torn and mangled in death, or victorious over his savage foe.

"Every instinct of self-preservation is alive and the man becomes for the time being as much a savage as is the beast he confronts.

"My back, Lawson, is against the wall. Fronting me the grafting corporations stand. Individual justice and corporate crime at last line up, in battle array. No fear will defer the contest and no man can.

Right is on Our Side.

"The principles embodied in my platform are at stake in the coming contest. The cause of the people, and incidentally my own political future, which is a thing of comparatively little importance, are involved in the issue.

"Right is on our side, yet wrong may triumph, but not until after the battle.

"This fight is half lost when timidly fought. As the man against the wall in savage desperation fights the tiger for his life, let us, like men, courteously and gentlemanly if possible, but savagely and desperately if needs be, do battle for the cause of the people against corrupting corporations, their agents and tools.

"We may lose, but, mangled and torn, we will retain our honor, and another day will come for another battle. Yours truly,

"JOHN B. MORAN."

MUCK MAKES FIRST HUB BOW

Dr. Carl Muck, the new leader of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, graciously loaned to the Hub for a year by Kaiser Wilhelm, made his debut yesterday afternoon at the first public rehearsal for the season in Symphony Hall.

Curiosity to see the new conductor and to "size up" his personality crowded the hall even more than is customary at a first afternoon performance, and many who usually go only to the Saturday night concerts were in the audience. Dr. Muck was welcomed warmly, though decorously, and was frequently recalled.

STEVENS 'PAT' ON OVERTIME

At a meeting of the Wage Earners' Club of Somerville, held in Union Hall, Senator Elmer A. Stevens, who was present, was called upon to explain his action in voting against the overtime bill, and he produced a sensation among the workingmen and others present when he declared that he saw no reason to change his opinion on that and other bills relative to labor.

When he was through speaking, Representative John Diggins, Democratic candidate for the Senate from the same district, challenged Senator Stevens to debate his record, but Mr. Stevens declined. The Senator was also invited to be present at the club next Friday evening, when a member of the club would discuss with him his position on labor questions, but the Senator said that he did not have the time.

WOMAN PETITIONS FOR RECEIVER FOR PARAGON

PRAYER ASKS THAT PLEASURE RESORT BE SOLD FOR BENEFIT OF CREDITORS.

Mrs. Georgianna Miller, a manufacturer of awnings and one of the creditors of Paragon Park, to-day filed a petition with Judge Fox in the equity session of the Superior Court, asking that a receiver be appointed to take charge of the Eastern Park Construction Company. Mrs. Miller is a creditor to the extent of $2,851. An order of notice was issued returnable on October 17, next Wednesday.

Mrs. Miller further asks the court that all the officers and all the creditors be enjoined from assigning, transferring or disposing of the assets or further encumbering the property until her cause has been heard. She says the company is insolvent and unable to meet its obligations.

She further asserts that the property has practically all been mortgaged to secure a bond issue. She charges injudicious management and says that the officers have been applying the assets to pay the bondholders, when, properly, such assets should have remained in the treasury.

Mrs. Miller asks not only for the appointment of a receiver, but that he have charge of all the assets, collect the debts and turn the assets into cash to pay those debts.

She wants the concern sold out, and the proceeds distributed among its creditors.

VICTORY NOW SURE, CRY OF DEMOCRATS

certainly will arouse the voters all over the State. His refusal of Mr. Lawson's aid shows his independent character.

James H. Doyle,

Superintendent of Streets.

The letter of Mr. Moran accepting the Democratic nomination is an answer to the people who have been trying to injure his candidacy and is a message of inspiration to the entire party. I think his independent attitude will result in his election.

Edward J. Leary,

City Messenger.

Mr. Moran's letter of acceptance of the Democratic nomination is the strongest statement I have seen since the time of William E. Russell. It shows that he has the right stuff in him. Boston is sure to give him a big majority.

Edward J. Donovan,

Clerk of City of Boston.

I think it is a very good letter. Mr. Moran has stated all there was to be stated and stated I well.

James F. Nolan,

Superintendent of Public Buildings.

Mr. Moran's letter has cleared the situation in the minds of many doubters. As a candidate for Governor he will get the regular Democratic vote and the votes of thousands of independents and Republicans who, while hesitating to vote for him under the designation "Democrat," will vote for him as the candidate of the Independence League. The city of Boston will roll up an unprecedented majority for Moran, and with his vote outside he will land a winner by thousands.

William J. Lyons,

Ward 16 Leader and Democratic Candidate for Representative in That Ward.

The letter of District Attorney Moran meets the situation fully. In deciding to ignore national issues he has done the proper things. The issue is as to ghether the corporations or the people shall rule on Beacon Hill, and it is in this issue that District Attorney Moran will face the people and be elected.

Henry S. Fitzgerald,

Ex-Senator and Mayor's Brother.

District Attorney Moran has written a very able letter and one of a very high moral tone. It will be heartily appreciated by the voters of the State.

James A. Gallivan,

Street Commissioner.

District Attorney Moran has taken his own time about accepting the nomination, as he had a perfect right to do. His letter shows that he has deliberated wisely and well. He will carry oBston by a majority that cannot be overcome in the country districts.

William T. A. Fitzgerald,

Former President of the Democratic City Committee and Candidate for Register of Deeds.

I am very much pleased at the tone of Mr. Moran's letter, and his purpose as indicated to make the fight along popular lines against the predatory trusts. I am confident that Moran will get the full Democratic vote of Boston.

Charles S. Sullivan,

Secretary of the Democratic City Committee and Former Senator.

The city organization is intensely loyal to Moran. There is no doubt about the support he will get here in Boston. His letter I regard as a model one. He has said all there was to be said.

Colonel A. C. Drinkwater,

Chairman of Executive Committee of Democratic State Committee.

Mr. Moran's letter of acceptance of the Democratic nomination is satisfactory to every Democrat in the State and shows that he is made of the right stuff for Governor. His independence of political bosses is something new to the people. I believe that Mr. Moran's chances to be elected are growing stronger every day.

M. M. Cunniff,

Mr. Moran's statement is a most remarkable presentation of his case, and I believe that the people will back him up in every word he wrote. His letter of acceptance will encourage the Democrats and independent voters to make a strong effort to bring about reform at the State House.

William A. Nye,

Republican Ex-Senator from the Cape.

"Mr. Moran's letters will be pleasing to many Republicans who do not believe in boss rule. His letter of acceptance puts the questoin up squarely to the Republicans of the State, and means a lot of votes for him from that source. His reply to Mr. Lawson, while it may be misconstrued by some, will have the effect of showing that he cannot be controlled."

HOMER HUMPHREY TO GIVE ORGAN RECITAL

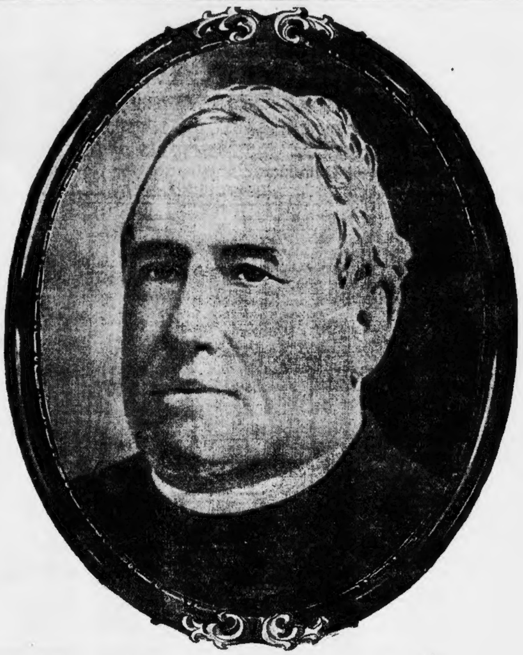
U. S. SUPPLIES TO ENTER CUBA FREE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—The War Department this morning received a cablegram from Havana signed by one of the aides to Brigadier-General Funston as follows:

"Decree will be published in Official Gazette to-day admitting free of duty all supplies and materials belonging to the United States."



If you have never read the Story of Father John's - do so Its all true and may prove of benefit to you

Half a century ago, Rev. Fr. John O'Brien of St. Patrick's Church, Lowell, Mass., through overwork and exposure, became seriously run down. A cold and stubborn cough and lung trouble threatened his life.

An eminent specialist gave Father John, as he was fondly called, a prescription to cure the cold and remove the lung trouble, as well as to build up and strengthen the body.

The clergyman began to improve at once, the cough disappeared, and his lungs healed. It corrected his digestion, made new tissue, and Father John was soon restored to his former health and strength.

Father John recommended the medicine to his parishioners and friends, and because of its merits it became the family remedy in thousands of homes, and became known as "Father John's Medicine," having been so named by the people, and was advertised, all with the approval of Father John.

It will cure all throat and lung troubles, prevent Pneumonia and Consumption, and make flesh and strength if taken faithfully.

It is not a patent medicine, but a pure food medicine, and does not contain alcohol or poisonous drugs.

A guarantee of $25,000.00 is made that the story of Father John's is true in every particular.

TRAGIC STORY OF ROBERT AND HAZEL LONG LESSON FOR HEEDLESS MAIDS AND YOUTHS

HUSBAND CHARGED WITH SHOOTING WIFE IN JEALOUS RAGE—SHE HOPELESS INVALID.

By Eleanor Ames.

THERE is a grand lesson for thoughtless maids and irresponsible youths in the tragic story of the bullet-shattered domestic career of Robert and Hazel Long, now bethreshed out in the criminal court.

Two years ago last May, when she was a care-free girl of twenty and he an equally care-free boy, a year or so older, they were married.

To-day he is a prisoner, charged with having shot his wife in a frenzy of jealous rage last August, and she, pale and thin, with one arm paralyzed and three bullets still in her body, knows that, if she lives, she can never hope for anything but a life of helpless invalidism.

Their child, an innocent babe of eighteen months, though too young to realize its condition, has been cared for much of its life by grandparents and will never know a real home.

The marriage of these two foolish young people grew out of what they believed to be a desperate love affair. Marriage seemed the only possible way to a life of happiness.

They were about as well fitted to assume the cares of married life as two dolls in a toy shop.

She Pretty—He Hopeful.

Hazel was pretty and vivacious and full of fun. Robert found her most companionable and thought he should be the happiest man alive when he could make her the presiding genius of his home.

He was young and hopeful—that was his entire capital.

He had no snug nest egg, he was not earning enough money to assure comfort for two, he was not firmly established in business.

For a time after they were married the young wife worked in a factory.

The husband himself told of it on the witness stand.

"She made $4 or $5 a week," he said, "and sometimes she gave him a little change."

"Why?" asked the attorney.

"She thought I might need it."

In about a year the baby came, and that meant another mouth to feed—another body to clothe.

The first year had not been one of great prosperity. So, when the baby was three weeks old, Robert Long did about the most foolish thing a man can do unless he goes to live at his wife's home, he took his wife to live with his parents.

His mother says they were all "just as happy as could be."

The young wife says they were not.

Mothers-in-law and wives seldom have the same idea of perfect happiness.

A Dangerous Experiment.

I believe in 999 cases out of 1,000 it is better to struggle along almost any way in domestic independence rather than to try the amalgamation of households, the new with the old.

The young husband sometimes had work and sometimes he did not.

Anyway, the wife was glad of a position as cashier when Wonderland, "The Mystic City by the Sea," opened its gates.

And her mother-in-law told on the witness stand that out of her wages as cashier Hazel Long paid $2 a week to her for the board of her son's child.

"Did your son pay anything?"

"Why, yes, when he had it. But he wasn't always working."

The husband and his father and mother and some other witnesses declare that when Hazel Long donned the red mortar board cap and the gown of a Wonderland cashier the death knell of her marital happiness was sounded.

The wife declares that the taking of the position was a necessity brought about by lack of money, and that it offered an escape from unhappiness.

At first all went well. The young wife came home as soon as her work was done at night, and the young husband always left the key out for her and sometimes sat up for her.

Husband Grew Jealous.

Then, instead of arriving home at 11:30, Hazel Long did not come home until midnight or later.

Finally, on July 9, she left her parents-in-law and husband entirely.

Meanwhile the husband was growing jealous and suspicious.

When a mind not over deep becomes filled with jealousy and suspicion, heaven help somebody—something's bound to happen.

Pale and care-worn, with deep lines creasing his cheeks, the husband told of his suspicions, his sufferings, his sleepless nights.

He is very short and slender, with small features, a pointed chin, heavy black hair, deep-set eyes and unusually heavy eyebrows.

ROBERT H LONG ACCUSED OF HAVING SHOT HIS WIFE THROUGH JEALOUSY

Sketched in Court by Boston American's Staff Artist.
HUSBAND AND WIFE AS SEEN AT TRIAL.

He is not the type of man to whom a big, strong woman would naturally look for protection and support, or of whom a broad-minded person would be too exacting.

About the time she left home, the wife began to talk divorce. That increased the husband's sufferings.

According to his parents and others in the house he walked the floors all night, moaning and crying and ringing his hands.

"Why doesn't she come home? Oh, why doesn't she come home?" he repeated over and over again.

Might Have Been Different.

When this testimony was given by the mother and a neighbor, Hazel Long, sitting back of the prisoner's cage, cried, her face working in grief and the tears flowing freely.

Perhaps if she could have heard that plea, last Summer, who knows? all might have been different.

On August 17 Hazel Long went home. She was warmly welcomed.

"Good-bye, Kid, I'm going now," called her husband as he left the house the next morning." Will you be home to-night?"

"Yes, put the key out for me."

That was the little pathetic conversation which Mrs. Samuels, across the hall, declares she heard.

But Hazel Long never went home again.

The husband grew more jealous and nervous.

Finally the end came.

On August 28, while at work, Mrs. Long heard that her husband had shot himself.

"My baby! My baby! I'm afraid he has shot my baby!"

The mother instinct was alive. She hurried away, and near her home her husband met her, firing five shots at her, four taking effect, and three bullets have never been removed from her poor, maimed body.

Now he denies all memory of the deed.

Was it an idle, foolish fancy, or was there substantial reason for the husband's jealousy?

Fond of a Good ime.

Well, we all know the care-free, unconventional Summer resort atmosphere, and Hazel Long was young and fond of life and a good time.

And how she was watched!

They confess it now, the relatives-at-law and women friends who went day after day to Wonderland.

"Yes, we did watch Hazel. She had a man's overcoat on one night, when it was chilly.

"A man put his arm around her and laughed.

"She laughed and joked too much for a married woman. We never said so before. Now we must confess it. If this hadn't happened we should have held our peace."

Poor, miserable, foolish pair!

Their young lives wrecked, their future gone!

The husband in prison, the wife a physical wreck, the baby knowing the sorrow of a divided home.

A little more thought, a little more realization of the real meaning of life and all would be different.

Take them for an example.

They are worth thinking about.

YOUTH STOLE FROM HARVARD FIVE MONTHS

Percy Wedge of No. 26 Brook street, Brookline, was arrested yesterday by the Cambridge police. He had articles of value on his person which had been stolen from Harvard College, and he made a clean breast to the officers.

Wedge had been going to the college laboratories for five months.

On his person were found a set of drawing instruments and a set of weights, valued at about $20; a French-English dictionary, which he had stolen in the Co-operative store that day, and five pawn tickets calling for a drawing set, optical glasses, a spectroscope, a suit case and a fountain pen. He admitted going into laboratories some eight or ten times and taking books.

HARVARD FUND FOR NEWSBOYS IS OVER $2,700

Announcement was made to-day by Kidder, Peabody & Co. of the receipt of the following amounts for the Boston Newsboys' Harvard College Fund:

Massachusetts Branch, American Federation of Labor, $101.
Newsboys' Union, $36.
Howard P. Arnold, $25.
New Bedford Cotton Mule Spinners' Association, $5.
Interest on the fund, $109.

This, with amounts previously acknowledged, makes the fund $2,758.16.

Meyer Heller, the member of the union who won the scholarship this year, has just entered Harvard College.

ROXBURY SINGER WINS FIRST PRIZE

Josephine Gately, a pretty little Roxbury singer, was voted the real thing at the Columbia amateur event last night, and won the first prize handily, Jimmy Barry, a dancer from the peninsular district, taking second money. The third prize was divided between Miss Elsie Russell and George Russell, who claim no relationship. The laughing act of the evening was the "Disappointed Girl" number of Miss Kittie O'Leary. The Hall sisters were good to gaze upon, but suffered from stage fright.

DRAPER HIRES GIRLS AND BOYS IN QUEEN CITY MILLS, SAYS MAYOR

Official Counted 57 Children of School Age Going into Mill with Rest of Help.

Special to the Boston American.

BURLINGTON, Vt., Oct. 13.—The stories from Hopedale, Mass., of the way in which Lieutenant-Governor Eben S. Draper has succeeded in suppressing the labor unions there, and of deductions made from the wages of workmen in the Draper establishment for institutions owned and operated by the Drapers, caused no surprise here.

It is recalled that the Queen City Cotton Mills, in which the Drapers are largely interested, have been accused by Mayor James E. Burke, in an official report made by him, with having violated the child labor law.

The charge was made by Mayor Burke in a message to the Board of Aldermen of this city, following an investigation of alleged violations of the law prohibiting the employment of children under fourteen years of age in the mills and factories, and requiring them instead to be sent to the public schools.

Scores of violations of this law were discovered by the officers. Among the violators was the Queen City Cotton Mills. One officer reported that he counted fifty-seven boys and girls of school age go into the mill in the morning and saw the same number emerge at the noon hour and go home to dinner.

Mills Violated Law.

This report, coupled with that of another officer, who witnessed on another morning fifteen boys and seventeen girls, between the ages of eight and fourteen years, going to work in the Queen City Cotton Mills, convinced Mayor Burke that the Draper establishment was violating the law and he sent a message to the Aldermen directing action to stop it.

Here are the exact words of Mayor Burke, taken from his official report:

"May 4, 1906: This morning I again sent an officer down to the Queen City Cotton Mills and he reported to me that, according to his best judgment, he counted fifty-seven boys and girls of school age go into the mill with the rest of the help and at the noon hour saw the same children come out of the mill and go home to dinner," and also under the same date he reported:

"At the Queen City Cotton Mills, when the help were going to their work in the morning, an officer saw fifteen boys and seventeen girls, and according to his best judgment they were between the ages of eight and fourteen years."

Paid Starvation Wages.

But infractions of the child labor laws are not the only instances of utter disregard of the principles of labor unionism in which the Drapers have taken part. It has been openly charged that the mills were bringing French-Canadians to this city on misrepresentations, and employing them at starvation wages.

It is even alleged that as the result of the meagre wages paid to these foreigners, the amount of disbursements of the overseer of the poor, outside of the almshouse, has increased several hundred dollars a year.

Certain it is that the amount of money annually paid out by the overseer to relieve cases of destitution in this milling district, has increased greatly since 1900, when the importation of French-Canadians began. In that year the records show that $6,920.17 was paid out in this work, and the sums expended in the next four years are as follows: 1901, $8,976.91; 1902, $7,884.61; 1903, $9,378.04; 1904, $9,451.03.

Mayor's Report on Child Workers in the Drapers' Queen City Mills

Extract from Message of Mayor James E. Burke, of Burlington, Vt., regarding child labor law violations in Queen City Cotton Mills, Burlington, Vt., in which the Drapers are largely interested:

"May 4.—This morning I again sent an officer down to the Queen City Cotton Mills, and he reported to me that, according to his best judgment, he counted fifty-seven boys and girls of school age go into the mill with the rest of the help, and at the noon hour saw the same children come out of the mill and go home to dinner."

In the same message:

"At the Queen City Cotton Mills when the help were going to their work in the morning an officer saw fifteen boys and seventeen girls, and, according to his best judgment, they were between the ages of eight and fourteen years."

TWO MORE UNIONS CONDEMN DRAPER

Two more labor organizations have adopted resolutions condemning Lieutenant-Governor Eben S. Draper and pledging their hearty support to E. Gerry Brown, the Democratic candidate for Lieutenant-Governor.

Carpenters' District Council.

The resolutions adopted unanimously by the Carpenters' District Council are as follows:

"Resolved, that the members of the Carpenters' District Council of Newton, Waltham, Watertown and vicinity join in the protest of organized labor of Massachusetts against the candidacy of Eben S. Draper for Lieutenant-Governor, whose trickery previous to the last election in giving his employes to understand that he was in favor of labor unions, and after the election demanding that they give up their cards or leave his employ, should bring a flush of indignation to the cheek of every fair-minded citizen; and be it further

"Resolved, that each member do all in his power to place in the Lieutenant-Governor's chair E. Gerry Brown, who has been a member of a trades union for years, and who may be trusted to serve the interests of organized labor faithfully."

Upholsterers' Union No. 53.

Upholsterers' Union No. 53 passed a resolution indorsing the action of the State Branch, A. F. of L., in condemning Lieutenant-Governor Draper, every member pledging himself to bring about Draper's defeat. The resolution is as follows:

"Resolved, that we, the members of Upholsterers' Union No. 53, indorse the action of the State Branch, A. F. of L., convention at Lawrence in condemning Lieutenant-Governor Draper as a bitter enemy to organized labor, and that the members of this union pledge themselves to do their utmost to bring about his defeat."

A resolution was also adopted by the Carpenters' District Council urging all citizens of Newton to vote for Andrew C. Hughes for Representative to the General Court in preference to John E. Lothrop, "who, by his record in the House on labor legislation, forfeits our suffrage."

CATHOLIC CLUB OF HARVARD TO GIVE RECEPTION

President Among Speakers Announced for Annual Gathering Monday.

SMOKE TALKS PLANNED

The annual informal reception of the Harvard Catholic Club will be held in Peabody Hall in the Phillips Brooks House, next Monday evening, beginning the fifteenth year of the club's activity. Daniel T. Hurley, the famous 'varsity football captain, who is serving his second year as president of the club, will preside at the meeting, and some of the speakers announced are President Eliot, Rev. John F. Farrell of St. Paul's, Cambridge; Professor J. D. M. Ford and Thomas F. Woodlock, L. L. D., of New York. Mr. Woodlock is one of the best informed financial authorities in this country, and for over forty years has been connected with a Wall street journal.

Series of Smoke Talks.

Owing to the limited capacity of Peabody Hall only Catholics will be invited to the reception, but during a series of smoke talks which will be given frequently during the college year students of all denominations will be cordially welcomed.

The smoke talks will be very enjoyable, for prominent speakers and men in public life have been secured. A number of other events has also been arranged. The annual dinner of the Catholic Alumni Association will be given in January, at which Secretary of the Navy Bonaparte is expected to be present. On February 11 the annual dancing party will be given, and the Hon. Stephen O'Meara, Police Commissioner, will deliver an address before the club in March.

Officers of Club.

The officers of the club this year are: Spiritual director, Rev. John F. Farrell, Cambridge; president, Daniel T. Hurley, Boston; vice-president, Byron V. Kanaley, Weedsport, N. Y.; secretary, William Fletcher, New York city; treasurer, James B. Clark, Ware, Mass.; librarian, William V. Ellis, Boston; directors, James N. Clark, Boston; John W. Cronin, East Weymouth, Mass.; William A. Hanley, Boston; H. B. Amberg, Chicago; Nicholas F. Devereaux, Utica, N. Y.

'TERRITORIALISTS' TO HOLD A CONVENTION

The Socialist Territorialists of America and Canada will hold a convention in Fleishmann's Hall, No. 85A Green street, Boston, from October 18 to 21, inclusive. On Sunday next a mass meeting will be held in Faneuil Hall at 2 p. m., and in the evening a concert will be given in Paine Memorial Hall.

SEEK ALLEGED CHIEF OF SMUGGLERS IN EUROPE

BOSTON MAN, SAID TO BE SYNDICATE HEAD EXPECTED TO LAND IN LIVERPOOL.

Steps were taken to-day by the immigration officials of this city to effect the capture of Goodman Phillips of Boston, who, it is alleged, is the real head of the smugglers' syndicate which landed forty-two Chinamen in this country on the Frolic, and who, it is expected, will land in Liverpool to-day from St. John's on the Dahome of the Furness line.

This information was obtained from James H. Lehneman, who is also a member of the syndicate, and who was captured at Halifax after he had jumped ashore from the steamer Silvia and tried by various ruses and a liberal offer of money to effect his escape.

Lehneman will fight extradition, it is reported, and some doubt exists as to whether it will be possible to bring him back to this country. Lawyer James J. Farrell, representing the immigration department of Boston, started to Halifax to-day to look into the matter.

Skipper Not Yet Found.

Captain Herbert F. Colby, the skipper of the Frolic, has not been found yet. It is expected that he will give himself up.

Dispatches to the BOSTON AMERICAN from Halifax say that Lehneman is occupying the best cell in the police station and is awaiting the arrival of Lawyer McCarthy of this city. The dispatches go on to say:

Official opinion seems to be of the same mind, that Lehneman cannot be extradited. It is no crime to bring Chinese into Canada, and the alleged crime for which extradition is sought must be committed in both states, according to the interpretation put upon the matter by a prominent official.

Aside from securing Attorney McCarthy from Boston, Lehneman has also engaged a legal firm here to look after such matters as may arise which may require a local knowledge.

Had Plenty of Money.

Lehneman can remain here as long as he wishes, providing he does not decide to allow himself to be extradited. He has plenty of money and has friends in Boston who will send him more. When arrested, he had over $1,000 in his clothes, besides several valuable diamond pins and rings. It is also said that before he landed from the steamer Sylvia he deposited $5,000 in the hands of the first officer of that boat for safe keeping.

Other than his counsel and the officials no one is allowed to see the prisoner. Attorney McCarthy has advised him not to talk to any one, and Chief of Police Powers is the only one so far who has succeeded in getting him to say anything of his case.

In a statement to Chief Powers last night Lehneman said that his capture in Halifax was a great surprise to him, inasmuch as he had successfully evaded the immigration officials in the United States. He told Chief Powers that Goodman Phillips of Boston is the leader of the band engaged in smuggling Chinese into the United States. According to the prisoner, Phillips is now on the ocean bound for London, having started from St. John's, N. F., on the steamship Dahomey of the Furness Line.

Boston First Port.

The police of this city are of the opinion that it was originally intended to have the Frolic call at Halifax and then, if the way was clear, proceed to Boston and land the Chinese. It is also believed that Lehneman, during a visit to this city, intercepted the Frolic off Sambro and ordered her to Providence.

Passengers who were on the steamer Sylvia and came in contact with Lehneman said that during the passage to this port from St. John's, he appeared to be well supplied with money, which he lavished on all sides. Lehneman told his fellow passengers that he was a prospector and was interested in coal mines. He also hinted that by means of bogus telegrams he had deceived the immigration officials of the United States, Canada and Newfoundland.

It was Lehneman's intention to leave the ship at Halifax, and to that end he had been bribing and tipping several of the crew to put him ashore in a boat as the steamship was entering port.

AGED WOMAN IS EVICTED IN ATTLEBORO

Mrs. Harriet T. Powers, Aged 71 Years, Is Driven From Her Home.

NORTH ATTLEBORO, Oct. 13.—John Herring has kept his word and Attleboro has had its eviction. Mrs. Harriet T. Powers, seventy-one years old, put out of the little Herring cottage in Plainville, ten feet from the North Attleboro line, spent last night with Mrs. Thomas Glennon, her nearest neighbor, while four young wards of the aged woman found shelter with others. The furniture was put into the street.

Mrs. Powers has for years conducted what may be called an independent orphanage. Children who were once her charges are now men and women in various parts of the country. She has lived in the Fremont street cottage for eight or ten years, and had paid $7 a month. Lately she got in arrears, finally for as much as four months, and she was ordered out.

Since Sunday friends and the charitable have been coming forward to square the rent account for her.

Last night, assisted by Deputy Sheriff Charles Pond of Wrentham, Herring cleaned the little house of tenants and furnishings. The household goods remained in the street all night. To-day Rev. George F. Osgood of Grace Episcopal Church sent men to collect the goods and store them. Everybody wants to help the aged woman in her plight.

HOLD OFFICIAL OF NEW YORK AS BIGAMIST

Robert Hawthorne, a Harvard Graduate, Arrested on Complaint of Two Women.

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—After his two alleged wives had met, compared notes, gone before the grand jury and sworn to testimony which resulted in an indictment for bigamy, Robert Hawthorne, a Harvard graduate, a member of the New York State Board of Arbitration at $2,500 a year, was arrested and locked up in Hoboken to-day, to await extradition, so that he can be tried in this city. Hawthorne is alleged to have married Miss Georgie F. Peck, after a courtship of a year carried on at her home, No. 102 West Ninety-third street. The ceremony took place, according to an affidavit, at the Murray Hotel on September 1, last.

Shortly after the marriage Miss Peck's parents began to receive anonymous letters. Finally a letter stated that Hawthorn was not a widower, as he had represented, but that he had a wife in Brooklyn and a child nine years old.

The bride's parents investigated and according to their daughter's affidavit found wife No. 1 and her child in Brooklyn. It is declared that he married his first wife, who was Miss Jennie B. Lavey of Windsor, Ct., on May 11, 1892.

Both women went before Assistant District Attorney Vandiver and then before the grand jury.

A warrant for the arrest of Hawthorne was issued by Judge Rosalsky, and Detective Sergeant Farley found Hawthorne at the Hotel Kenville at Lakeville, N. J.

HONEYMOON ABROAD FOR FAIRBANKS AND HIS BRIDE

MRS FREDERICK COLE FAIRBANKS' née SCOTT

YOUNG WOMAN WHO ELOPED WITH SON OF THE VICE-PRESIDENT.

Mediterranean Trip Planned by the Eloping Son of Vice-President, and Young Wife.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 13.—Amid the beauties of the Mediterranean, where Winter is Summer, Frederick Cole Fairbanks, son of the Vice-President, and his bride, with whom he eloped from this city, will pass their honeymoon.

They are now in Pittsburg, making plans for their trip and receiving the congratulations and good wishes of their friends. These are legion, for, as Miss Nellie Scott, the bride was immensely popular.

The elopement, while perhaps it was not against the expressed command of Vice-President Fairbanks, was against his wishes and advice. An engagement existed with the sanction of the parents, but Mr. Fairbanks believed that there should be a church wedding in regular form. He also thought that both his son and Miss Scott were too young to marry and that they should wait a year.

This plan did not suit the young man. His pleading made his sweetheart of the same mind. Young Mr. Fairbanks was in Springfield, Ohio. He telegraphed Miss Scott, took a train for Pittsburg and registered at the Hotel Schenley.

Then he and his fiancee made their plans. They left Pittsburg very quietly and went to Steubenville, Ohio. There the Rev. Dr. Brodie, a personal friend of Mr. Fairbanks, made them man and wife. The first news of the marriage that reached Pittsburg was in the form of a telegram to the parents of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. James Scott. It read:

> Frederick and I were married here yesterday. NELLIE.

The exact nature of the correspondence that has been exchanged by Mr. Fairbanks and his father has not been made public.

Young Mrs. Fairbanks is an accomplished musician and was a pupil at the fashionable school of Miss Somers in Washington. She had known Mr. Fairbanks, who is a graduate of Princeton '03, less than a year.

ARM CRUSHED; FIGHTS POLICE

HAVERHILL, Oct. 13.—With his head and arm crushed, the arm so seriously that it was immediately amputated at the Hall hospital, Roland Villeneuve, a nine-year-old lad, fought with the police in an effort to escape being taken to the hospital in the police ambulance. The boy ran into the side of a Hilldale avenue electric and in order to protect his face threw out an arm and fell beneath the wheels.

The car ground the arm nearly off and crushed the boy's head, and it was the jar of running over the bones of the arm which first attracted the attention of the car men. The police ambulance was summoned, but the boy resisted the efforts of the officers, conscious all the while in spite of the agony he was enduring. Dr. Anthony amputated the arm at the hospital and the boy may die.

ANTI-TREATING PLEDGE SIGNED BY HUNDREDS

As a result of the earnest work of four priests of the Society of Jesus, or, as they are commonly called, Jesuits, between 600 and 1,000 Dorchester men have signed a pledge neither to give nor to accept a treat in a saloon for a period of one year.

The missioners are not making a general crusade at this time against drinking, though they preach temperance at all times.

The Jesuit missionaries are Fathers W. J. Stanton, Francis Goeding, John Coughlin and P. J. Casey. They are just closing a three weeks' mission at St. Peter's Church, Meeting House Hill. The Rev. Peter Ronan and his parishioners say that it has been the most successful mission the parish has ever known. The first week was given up to the women, married and single, the second to married men and this week to single men. All the men meet together to-morrow, when the last of the pledge cards will be taken up. This is the text of the pledge:

"I hereby solemnly promise that I will neither give nor accept a treat of intoxicating drink in a saloon for one year."

"For God and country and your homes," Father Stanton pleaded with the young men last night, "do something memorable and likely to produce a beneficent result in your whole lives."

"The treating custom, you know," he said to-day to a reporter for the BOSTON AMERICAN, "is exclusively American. You do not see it abroad. We priests, who are in a position to know, believe that if the treating custom could be banished from the United States Americans would thus practically wipe out wholesale drunkenness and a good deal of poverty. Money is wasted at the bar when the crowd begins to treat around and many a man is robbing his family there to make a 'good fellow' of himself."

In the West, the missioners have made use of an anti-treating button, but in all probability they will not introduce it here.

HOLD MAN FOR ATTACK ON GIRL

CONCORD, Oct. 13.—John Prout, charged with attacking twelve-year-old Ellen Conners in the woods of Lincoln a week ago, was to-day held by Judge Keyes in the District Court in $1,500 for the grand jury.

In the courtroom Prout was identified by the little girl. Captain John H. O'Brien of Everett also testified that he was the same John Prout who in 1901 was charged in that city with a similar offence.

Prout is said to have a religious mania. He has spent his time in jail here exhorting policemen, jail attendants, prisoners or anybody he could reach with his voice.

ATTEMPT TO KILL FRAULEIN KRUPP FEARED

ESSEN, Germany, Oct. 13.—Fears that an attempt may be made by anarchistic workmen employed in some of the Krupp enterprises to assassinate Fraulein Bertha Krupp, who is to be married on Monday to Lieutenant Gustav von Bohlen und Halbach, have caused the greatest precautions to be taken to prevent any one from gaining admission to the grounds of the young heiress's palatial residence.

The Krupp mansion is guarded as carefully as the palace of Czar Nicholas, and has been transformed into a miniature fortress. Members of the Krupp fire brigade are acting as guards.

Another reason for having these men on the watch is to head off beggars who are anxious to reach the young woman. Hundreds of them are in the neighborhood, but it is unlikely that any one will succeed in getting close enough to Fraulein Krupp to ask for alms.

This wedding, notwithstanding the great wealth of the bride-to-be, will set a record for simplicity. Although Emperor William will be one of the guests, the marriage will be conducted with the simplicity of any shopgirl's bridal ceremony. The bride's trousseau cost only $250, and other arrangements for the notable event have been made with equal care to avoid any display of lavishness. However, the ceremony will be performed in a chapel erected especially for the purpose on the Krupp mansion grounds.

Fraulein Krupp will make a donation of $250,000 to the pension fund of the Krupp works as a wedding gift.

She has also arranged for a series of banquets to be given to all of the employes of the Krupp industries and their families. Over 100,000 people will be entertained at these dinners, which will extend over the next fortnight.

HEARST SENDS HIS LETTER OF ACCEPTANCE

Outlines the Issues on Which He Will Battle for Governorship of New York.

PEOPLE AGAINST BOSSES

By Boston American Leased Wire.

ELMIRA, N. Y., Oct. 13.—William Randolph Hearst last night sent the following letter, accepting the Democratic nomination for Governor of New York State, to William J. Connors, chairman of the Democratic State Committee.

William J. Conners, Chairman Democratic State Committee:

Dear Sir—I accept the nomination of the Democratic party, bearing in mind the record of that great party in the past, and knowing that the membership of the party is determined still to be ruled by the principles of Jefferson and Jackson, and guided by Democracy's ideal, "the greatest good to the greatest number."

To study the work, the beliefs and the faithful efforts of the Democracy's great leaders is an inspiration to all men sincerely in accord with the American theory of government.

Against Special Privilege.

True Democrats must stand for Jefferson and Jackson, for the best interest of the whole citizenship, rather than for the selfish interests of any particular class or individual seeking for special privilege.

It cannot be denied that certain individuals and classes have at times secured control of the machinery of the Democratic party and attempted to use it for their own personal or class profit.

The duty of true Democrats is to drive from the party those that represent only special interests and those that seek to promote such interests at the expense of the general welfare.

The Democratic convention at Buffalo did this in a most conspicuous and effective manner.

The line is now clearly drawn between special privilege on the one hand and equal opportunity on the other.

Democracy's Opportunity.

The Democratic party, purged in this State of corporation control and pledged to end the boss control through which corporations act, now has an opportunity to serve the people as efficiently as it did in the times of Jefferson and Jackson.

Already, in the time of Jefferson, the so-called aristocracy had begun to look upon the Declaration of Independence as a theoretical expression of sentiment not to be considered practical or actually binding.

Invariably we find that a declaration by the people of their determination to rule must constantly be followed up, constantly protected against the determined effort of individuals to take over for their own interests the governing power that the people are rightfully determined to keep in their own hands.

To-day we see again the effort to deprive the people of self-government, to vest the powers of government in the hands of corporation attorneys representing special interests.

This un-American condition reached its climax in the State of New York as illustrated in the New York city election last year.

On that occasion the disbelief of the trusts in the ability or the right of the people to govern themselves extended even to taking away from the people the right to vote and to have their votes counted.

No Power Above the Government.

The property rights of every man and of every organization of any kind must be respected, but to-day, as in the days of Jackson, it is necessary to declare that no power shall rise up greater than the government, or menacing to the government.

The Democrats of to-day must declare, and they must mean, that no matter how great the wealth of individuals or corporations, that wealth must not be an irresponsible dominating power in government.

No organization of money, however great, must overrule the votes of the citizens, or deprive of his vote any single citizen.

The enforcement of the eight-hour law in government work, the enforcement of the law concerning the prevailing rate of wages, is demanded by the people, and it is demanded by a Democratic principle as old as the Declaration of Independence. Control by the government of railroads and railroad rates means control of a national necessity upon which the prosperity and the comfort of the whole people depend.

Denounces Coolie Labor.

Democracy speaks also in denunciation of the great Chinese labor menace, which is now revived because of the introduction on a large scale of Chinese labor at Panama.

The suggestion to introduce into this country and employ by the tax-payers of this country a people of low intelligence, and still lower morals, is an attack upon the welfare, moral and material, of American citizenship.

I accept the nomination gladly, realizing the opportunity for useful work which is offered to-day to all those that may be elected to office as servants of the people, and anxious to deserve the confidence of the people.

I promise faithfully, if elected, to do all that I can as a citizen of the United States in office to realize and apply the great principles of the historic Democratic party.

I pledge myself to work with others to rid the Democratic party, and so far as possible all branches of government, of that plutocratic trust element that seeks to rule both parties and to destroy the Democratic party utterly.

[Signed.]

MRS. HANNAH STRECKER

Holds Fugitive by Throat Until Patrolman Comes to Rescue.

Prisoner, With Long Record, Held by Court in $1,000 Bail.

Thomas Prenty, alias Thomas J. Parker, said to be a well-known crook with a long record, who was caught after a chase through Roxbury streets by Mrs. Hannah Strecker, whose woodenware store at 515 Dudley street he is charged with robbing, pleaded not guilty in the Roxbury Court to-day, and was held in $1,000 for the Grand Jury.

A man entered her store yesterday afternoon and asked Mrs. Strecker to change a $5 bill. He saw where she kept her money, took his change and left. A few minutes later a second man entered and told her he was a "water inspector." He "inspected" the premises and then left.

Then the first man reappeared and made a small purchase. To get the article he wanted, Mrs. Strecker went to the counter on the sidewalk. While she was engaged Prenty entered the store, remaining long enough to go to the cash drawer, and ran out.

Woman Gives Chase.

Mrs. Strecker quickly discovered her loss of $107 in money and $80 worth of jewelry, and gave chase, screaming "Police." Up Dudley street ran Prenty, Mrs. Strecker close behind. He turned into North avenue and then into Brook street. Here Mrs. Strecker, knowing the short cuts, had an advantage. She took to the yards and came out into Dudley street at the corner of Brook avenue almost at the same moment that Prenty turned the corner.

Prenty dashed across Dudley street and turned down Shirley street. He was badly winded and Mrs. Strecker was gaining.

Halfway down the street she caught him, grabbed him by the throat and screamed for the police. Patrolman Bryan arrived on the scene and seized Prenty just as Mrs. Strecker fainted. At the station the man gave the name of Thomas Parker, but he was quickly recognized as Prenty.

Jail Record of Seventeen Years.

He has a record of seventeen years in different jails, including four terms in Sing Sing, one of them for shooting a policeman. His picture is in almost every rogues' gallery in the country.

When questioned by a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter to-day, Mrs. Strecker said:

"I was alone in the store yesterday afternoon, when a man came in and asked me if I could change $5, as he wanted to send some of it away. I went to the money drawer in the back of the store, to change it. I noticed that he watched me. He thanked me and walked out. Another man came in and said he was the water inspector. After looking over the pipes, he also departed.

"A few minutes later I saw a man standing outside the door looking at some goods. I went out, and while there, the first caller walked by me into the store. He came out soon, and brushing by me walked up the street. I called him, but he hurried faster. I rushed into the store, saw the money drawer empty, and started in pursuit.

"I gave chase and caught him, holding him until an officer arrived."

CITY TO GIVE AWAY PRETTIEST MITE EVER

Stork Makes Mistake; Baby Left at Station

"Dearest Little Thing" Woman Was Asked to Hold a Minute Wins Hearts of Policeman and All Others.

The sweet little, cute little girl baby that Mr. Stork brought to somebody who didn't want a sweet little, cute little girl baby, being undoubtedly a person of no heart and poor judgment, and which that somebody apparently deserted yesterday in the outward waiting room at the North Union station, is to be given away by the great city of Boston. Who speaks first?

Little Miss Somebody awaits a bid at the temporary home in Chardon street; and even Miss Anna A. Johnson, who has been in charge of that institution for years, and who has met and mothered all manner of strange wayfaring little ones, joins with railroad station attendants and policemen in expressing that this is the sweetest and best-mannered little toddlekins that ever was. "Isn't she just the dearest?" all the women want to know, and they want to know with an intonation that simply defies a negative.

The baby turned up at the North station at 9 o'clock in the morning. An hour and a half later she was taken in charge by Mrs. Jennie Edgar, the matron. A strange young woman came into the women's room at that time and said to "Mary," the sweet-faced elderly assistant to the matron, that an older woman, out in the waiting room, wanted to know what in the world she was to do with a strange baby that had been left with her.

It turned out to be apparently the old, old story of "Won't you please mind my baby for a few moments?" and, also in the good old way, the young woman never came back. She was only going to arrange her hair.

The elderly woman, who was tall and slender and probably fifty, had complacently held the little stranger until it was almost time for her train. Nobody thought to get her name or destination.

"Girl Had a Little Curl."

All that she knew, apparently, was that the girl whom she had obliged seemed to be not more than eighteen, and was dressed in gray.

"And, Oh, yes," she did say: 'I did notice that she had a little curl that hung way down on her forehead.'

"An old acquaintance," said Matron Edgar, completing the nursery rhyme, "'and when she was bad, she was horrid.'"

All this time the little lady in the case was quite as unconcerned as you please. She smiled, she sucked a sweet little thumb, she said "Goo" to everybody, and she won every heart. They were in no hurry to get rid of her in the matron's room, where, after all, they seldom see babies that are so very well behaved, and so it lacked but a very few minutes of noon when they told big "Jack" Good of Station 1 about it.

Big "Jack" is a familiar figure to everybody who has used the North station much in the past seven years. He comes from Station 1 in Hanover street, and he is 6 feet 2½ inches tall and built in proportion.

"All right," big "Jack" said to Mrs. Edgar, blushing like a schoolboy—he's a lone bachelor, poor fellow—"just hold onto the youngster, Mrs. Edgar, until I get back from dinner. Then, if the mother hasn't shown up, we'll see about it."

But of course the mother hadn't shown up and the baby, still smiling sweetly upon this good old world, was placed in "Jack" Good's arms at just 1 o'clock. The waiting room was well filled at that hour. None of those who looked on knew that smiling Miss Sunshine was a deserted waif. So they chaffed the big policeman. She was a mere mite in his strong arms. "My, but I envy her," one girl said—between chocolates—to her school friend. And a brother officer whistled "Rock the Cradle, John," as big "Jack," now the cynosure of every eye, waited for the wagon.

First they went to Station 1, and on the way Good hummed:

"For sale, a baby, so sweet and fair;
For sale, a baby, with golden hair;
For sale, a baby, who'll smile and coo;
For sale, a baby, with eyes of blue."

"Such a Good-natured Baby."

This baby was so very good-natured, too, that she did not interrupt the big officer to call his attention to the obvious fact that she hasn't very much hair of any sort, and that when it does come it is quite likely to be black. Nor did she remind him that her eyes are bright and very, very dark. Instead, she just "coo'd" and "coo'd" to him, once in a while, by way of entertainment, trying to swallow a bright golden police button.

Station 1, chaffing the big "cop" some more, sent her to the home in Chardon street. Big "Jack" stayed with her to the last. If the matron hadn't been looking, there is no telling but that big "Jack" would have kissed her, the baby, good-bye. "Best kid I ever saw," he said to the BOSTON AMERICAN reporter.

Now, then, they'll keep the baby in Chardon street for only a day or two. Then she'll be turned over to the overseers of the poor, to be "farmed out," for lost babies no longer go to big statistical institutions. This little girl is five months old, the experts say. She was very well dressed in white, with a white lace cap, a cream-colored cloak and white knitted shoes, with a little baby blue in them.

But what mistakes the stork makes!

CHEER LEAGUE CANDIDATES AT CHELSEA RALLY

Speakers Predict Election of Moran and Brown at an Enthusiastic Meeting.

TO MAKE CITY CANVASS

At an enthusiastic rally in Chelsea last night John B. Moran and E. Gerry Brown were indorsed by the Chelsea Independence League at one of the largest meetings yet held by any league.

The Chelsea branch, though formed only a week ago, has now over 100 enrolled members, and promises to be one of the strongest leagues in the State.

The meeting was called to order by Chairman McCann, who described to the new members the principles of the organization and introduced as speakers Thomas H. Bates, George Davis and James R. Carroll.

Mr. Bates, the first speaker, was interrupted several times by cheers and enthusiastic applause. He said in part:

"Refuses to Wear Collar."

"Mr. Moran has not the large sums of money that his opponents have to distribute in this campaign, and has not the support of the corporations or funds that come through the channels of the corporations, and he will not be handicapped by this embarrassment when election day arrives.

"Had he been a tool of the corporations he would have no difficulty in arranging money matters, but he is a representative of the people and refuses to wear the collar."

"This being a laboring city, you are all familiar with E. Gerry Brown, and there is no question of his election against the 'Hopeless' man."

Mr. Bates predicted the election of Moran.

Chairman McCann cited to the members the way graft has existed in Chelsea for years and said it took John B. Moran to sift the charges against several city officials and bring them before the Grand Jury.

To Canvass City.

James R. Carroll, who is to be an Independence League candidate for alderman in the next city election, was appointed chairman of a committee to canvass the city in the interests of Moran and Brown, the Independence League candidates.

George Davis, chairman of the Ward 8 League, told of the work being done in his ward by the League and also throughout the entire State, which he has traveled in the interests of Moran.

The Chelsea League will hold weekly meetings in Broadway Hall, and promises to be one of the strongest organizations in the State.

LYNN LEAGUE TO FORM COMMITTEE OF 3 FROM EACH WARD

Special to the Boston American.

LYNN, Oct. 13.—A meeting of the executive committee of the Lynn branch of the Independence League of Massachusetts was held at the residence of E. B. Fairbanks, at High Rock, and it was decided to form a board, of which the executive committee would be the central body, consisting of three members from each ward in the city, to take charge of all local affairs. The next meeting of the committee will be held Tuesday evening.

MANSFIELD GAINS IN SENATE FIGHT AGAINST CURLEY

Fighting against tremendous opposition, which he does not fear in the least, John J. Mansfield, the people's candidate for the State Senate in the coming election, and indorsed by the Independence League of Massachusetts, is making great strides toward the defeat of Thomas F. Curley, a member of the "Curley" machine and Tammany Club of Ward 17, who is his only formidable opponent.

Mr. Mansfield and his supporters are proud of his record as a public servant, for there is nothing which he has done which would throw the slightest shadow of suspicion upon his character. His every move in politics has been to benefit the people, especially the workingmen, and he stands before them as their friend.

The fight in the Fourth Suffolk, which includes Wards 9, 12 and 17, will be one of the warmest which has even been waged over a Senatorial election in this State. It is a fight of the people against the corporations, and from the present outlook the people are going to win.

ACCUSED MAN IN MURDER CASE NEAR COLLAPSE

Wood, Charged With Killing Sister-in-Law, in Terror of the Chair.

JEALOUSY AS THE MOTIVE

Special to the Boston American.

WORCESTER, Oct. 13.—Harry Wood, held on charge of murdering his sister-in-law, Mrs. Ira E. Wood, of Winchendon, is lying in the jail hospital of Worcester county, his throat cut, and on the verge of collapse from the terror of his situation as an accused murderer. He is in no danger of dying.

The motive for the crime is believed, by the police, to have been jealousy and a strong antipathy born of a disordered mind. The victim came here from Detroit, Mich., a few years ago. She was a Miss Alice Henson, and Ira Wood courted her for months by correspondence. Photographs were exchanged, and finally Miss Henson came here and after a few weeks married Ira Wood.

Harry Wood, his brother, did not take kindly to the union and he allowed no opportunity to go by without insulting his pretty sister-in-law. His conduct toward his brother's wife was generally remarked, and when Harry went on periodical drinking bouts his abuse of Ira's wife was so persistent that Ira finally ordered his brother out of his house. He told him to never return, and Harry, naturally morose, became more eccentric than ever. A few days ago he began drinking heavily and through his distorted vision saw his brother's wife coming between himself and Ira.

Not once since his arrest has Wood denied that he fired the shot that killed his sister-in-law, but he has ever since kept up a continual moaning, and at intervals cries out, "If I shot her I did not know anything about it; I didn't know it."

Wood is in a state of terror. No hope appears to appeal to him; nothing but the spectre of the chair. He regards himself as doomed and from hour to hour wails out his pitiable plea that he knows nothing about the horrible deed that deprived his brother of a wife and his niece of a mother.

GETS NEW JOB AND IS KILLED

Securing work to-day after trying three weeks, an unknown man was killed by a falling derrick on the grounds of the Watertown Arsenal a few minutes after he started in on his job. The man was a stone mason, and for a long time had been trying to get work in the clearing of the arsenal grounds for the Charles River parkway extension, coming every day.

His name was not taken. The body is now at Raymond's undertaking rooms on Main street. The man is fairly well dressed, is about 48 years old, weighing 200 pounds and is light complexioned, with sandy moustache and hair. None of the workmen knew him.

POLICE PROBE 2 BURGLARIES

Two burglaries at Jamaica Plain are being investigated by the police to-day in an attempt to discover the identity of the robbers. The apartments of Miss Martha Gray at No. 35 School street were entered last night between 7:30 and 8:30 o'clock, and $12 in money and jewelry valued at $65 were stolen. Entrance was gained by the use of false keys. The apartment is on the third floor, and no one was at home at the time the burglars entered.

The provision store of Edward M. Fisher at No. 122 Green street was entered on the night of October 10 and $8.25 taken from the money drawer.

Miss Harriot S. Curtis of the Essex County Club of Manchester, a Boston young woman, is the national golf champion of America.

In a match which was closely and eagerly contested with Miss Molly B. Adams of the Wollaston Club she won two up. The match was hard fought from the moment Miss Adams stepped to the first teeing ground.

In the face of a driving wind, which is a degree bothered the golfers, the final round of the woman's national golf tournament was played. Hundreds of devotees of the royal and ancient game comprised a gallery that followed the fair players over the course.

Unsteady at First.

The playing of the new champion and the runner-up, considering the unfavorable weather conditions, was remarkable. At the start both young women showed traces of nervousness, and the play was perhaps a little unsteady, but as the match continued the determination took the place of any timidity there might have been, and stroke for stroke Miss Curtis and Miss Adams played the game of their lives.

The play for the first hole started with a mishap. After the pair had made drives in which Miss Curtis had about ten yards advantage, she pulled her second shot and the ball went into the woods. After a consultation among the officials it was decided to allow her to take the ball out without a penalty. Miss Adams won the hole, and held her opponent 1 up.

The second was poorly played. Too much eagerness was shown by the players as they drove for the green. Each overran several yards, being obliged to make two on the green. The hole was halved in seven. Miss Curtis sliced into the woods on the third drive into the bunker. The former cleverly got out of the hard position and aroused much applause by halving the hole with her opponent in five.

Honors Even at Fourth Hole.

Honors were evened on the fourth hole, when Miss Curtis won, seven to six. Play at this point was the most excellent of the game. Miss Curtis made a beautiful drive from the woods, landing on the green and beating Miss Adams, who played in the open. On the next she made the game one up in her favor, and on the seventh, after a long put, which Miss Adams imitated, won and gained the lead, which made matters strongly in her favor. The first round ended with the play one up in Miss Curtis's favor.

Starting in on the tenth both drove evenly. Miss Adams's second, a brassie, was the better. On the green Miss Adams fell down, and the hole went to Miss Curtis, 5 to 6(and Miss Curtis was 2 up. On the eleventh Miss Curtis's long game put her to the green shot in better position, but Miss Adams's short approach was neat and she just missed her first on the green. The hole was halved in six. The twelfth was even for three, Miss Adams being lucky on her third grazed trap and winning the hole, five to six, and Miss Curtis was 2 up.

On the thirteenth Miss Adams was strong on approach, but her opponent was better. Both were on the green in two. Both putted well and the hole went to Miss Curtis, four to five.

The fourteenth hole was halved. The Wollaston player drove into the brush, but played to the open brilliantly.

Wollaston Player Gains.

In the fifteen the Miss Curtis had the ill fortune to drive into the crowd. It required seven shots to hole her ball and she lost her nerve completely. The sixteenth brought the score back to 1 up 2 to go and the seventeenth hole was a short one a fair drive enabling one to get on the green. Miss Adams drove off. Her ball struck a tree and came in bounds again.

She was about three yards from a hazard. On her next stroke she topped the ball and fell behind the bunker. Twice she tried to loft it out, but it required still another for her to get on the green. Miss Curtis had laid her ball on the edge of the green. Her putt was too strong on the next, but she holed in four, winning the hole, match, title and trophy, 2 up and 1 to go.

Not your stomach is why the dealer forces substitutes for Sanford's Ginger.

GOV. GUILD AND GILDED DOME

In justice to Governor Curtis Guild, Jr. an error in the statement made with reference to his connection with the regilding of the State House dome is hereby corrected.

It is true that a committee from the Central Labor Union called on the Governor to make a protest. The committee was composed of Martin T. Joyce, president of the Boston Central Labor Union; Charles E. Roeder of the Gold Beaters' Union, Alderman Fred J. Kneeland of Painters' Union No. 11 of Boston, and Harry Noble, business agent of the Painters' Union.

When this committee called upon Governor Guild he referred them to the sergeant-at-arms of the building, who has charge of the work being done. That was the only connection the Governor had with the committee. The sergeant-at-arms declined to take any action.

It is probably true that some of the work is being done by non-union men. The contractor is N. J. Finney and organized labor men do not regard him with favor. John T. Cashman, business agent for the Building Trades' Council, had this to say about Mr. Finney:

"He runs what is generally known as an open shop—that is, it is open to non-union men and generally closed to union men. He prefers the man who does not belong to a union."

The statement that non-union gold leaf was being used was a mistake. The contract calls for union gold leaf of twenty-three carats purity and that kind is being used. Little work is being done on the dome at present because of a strike of gold beaters in the city.

UNIONS WIN LEGAL FIGHT.

BRIDGEPORT, Ct., Oct. 13.—The temporary injunction restraining the Bricklayers and Plasterers' Union, the Stone Masons' Union and the International Protective Association from interfering with non-union men in Bridgeport, was yesterday dissolved by Judge Gager.

LABOR NEWS

ALLIED PRINTING TRADES LABEL COUNCIL BOSTON MASS 96

NOTICE TO LABOR UNIONS.

A concerted movement to elect E. Gerry Brown, the labor union candidate, Lieutenant-Governor in place of Eben S. Draper is taking place throughout Massachusetts.

Unions which take any action in regard to Mr. Brown's or Mr. Draper's candidacy are requested to notify the BOSTON AMERICAN at once of such action, and to send copies of all resolutions adopted. Address

LABOR EDITOR, BOSTON AMERICAN, Boston, Mass.

Plans to bring about the defeat of Senator Daniel W. Lane, who is a candidate for Congress from the Eleventh District, will be formulated to-night at the hall of the Ward 19 Wage Earners' Club, No. 1,109 Columbus avenue. Delegates from every ward in the district are requested to attend. Arrangements will be made for rallies to be held throughout the district, and speakers assigned. Lane was one of those Senators who assisted in the defeat of the overtime bill. A resolution condemning the legislative anti-labor record of Lane was passed at the convention of the State branch, A. F. of L., held at Lawrence this week.

LABOR'S STRENGTH AT POLLS.

Labor organizations in Boston which think that labor could show its strength in a more practical way than by holding parades on Labor Day will be interested in an article in the present issue of the Leather Workers' Journal. In the observance of the day, it would eliminate the parade, but would hold to the gatherings addressed by prominent speakers. The article concludes with the following:

"If you want to show the strength of organized labor, march to the polls in solid phalanx in November 6 (election day), and vote for labor's candidates. This would give you more prestige, respect and recognition than any parade you could arrange."

REDUCE FEE TO $25.

Elevator Constructors' Union has voted that former members be reinstated at a reduced fee of $25, the offer to remain open until November 11. The following officers have been elected: President, F. J. Dutton; vice-president, H. C. Garland; recording secretary, Walter Murphy; financial secretary, Albert Dunk; treasurer, John Swanson; sergeant-at-arms, John Howley; business agent, John C. MacDonald; auditors, W. Rosenburg, F. Burden and Irwin Young; trustees, Fred Ward, Daniel Phillips and Louis Nodstrom; examining board, Harry Wiswell, H. C. Garland and William MacLoud.

AID FOR GOLDBEATERS.

Five dollars has been donated by Hatters' Union No. 6 to the striking goldbeaters. The annual ball of the joint Hatters' Unions will be held Washington's Birthday at Odd Fellows' Hall. A committee has been appointed to work on this matter with other unions of the craft.

LABOR NOTES.

The ball committee of Stationary Engineers' Union No. 16 will meet next Monday night at No. 514 Tremont street.

ROB SOCIETY WOMAN OF $2,500 IN JEWELS

DEEP MYSTERY IN GEM THEFT IN DEDHAM HOME OF MRS. CHARLES WARREN.

The robbery of $2,500 worth of Jewels, the property of Mrs. Charles Warren of the fashionable Connecticut corner district, Dedham, and the wife of Charles Warren, chairman of the Massachusetts Civil Service Commission, a crime which the Dedham police have succeeded in keeping quiet since Thursday, came to light to-day through a search for the stolen property through the pawnshops of the city by Boston police inspectors.

The property stolen was all personal jewelry of Mrs. Warren, and several of the pieces wedding gifts, one being a beautiful diamond sunburst, the gift of her husband. The property was left by Mrs. Warren upon the dresser in her boudoir when she drove out calling Thursday afternoon. Her husband was at his Boston law office, and there was no one in the house except a dressmaker and Mrs. Warren's maid. The dressmaker is a very estimable woman, and Mrs. Warren places implicit confidence in her maid.

The loss was not discovered until Mrs. Warren started to dress for dinner that evening. Startled almost beyond belief to find the jewels missing, Mrs. Warren notified her husband, and after a thorough search of the house had been made and the dressmaker and maid questioned, the police were notified with instructions not to let the robbery become public.

The Dedham police are puzzled, and while unable to obtain any clue Chief William F. Drugan has thus far confined his investigation to the immediate neighborhood of the Warren household. The Boston police, however, were furnished with a description of the jewels and asked to institute a search in this city for the missing gems.

CHEERS GREET NINTH IN N. Y.

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—The Ninth Regiment, Massachusetts Volunteer Militia, 700 strong, is here to-day to participate in the dedication of the new armory of the Sixty-Ninth New York Regiment.

The visiting regiment was met at the depot last night by the officers of the Sixty-ninth. They were entertained at the Third avenue armory. The officers stayed at the Fifth Avenue Hotel, and the members of the Ninth Regiment slept at the old armory, where quarters had been provided for them.

COMPTROLLERS WON BY NEW SPELLING

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—The President's advocacy of simplified spelling has made a convert of Robert J. Tracewell, comptroller of the treasury. When the President issued his simplified spelling rules the comptrollers of the currency and the treasury pointed to the fact that the law provided for "comptrollers," not "controllers," but the annual report of Mr. Tracewell was published yesterday, and the title page reads "Controller."

MAN IS KILLED BY AUTOMOBILE

WATERBURY, Ct., Oct. 13.—Frederick M. Frost, of No. 121 Union street, was struck and instantly killed by the auto touring car of A. M. Young, president of the Connecticut Railway and Lighting Company, near the terminus of the East Main street car line about 10 o'clock to-day. Hugh McCloud, a chauffeur, was driving the machine on his way to Mr. Young's home in Branford. Mr. Frost, with his wife, had just alighted from a trolley car and was crossing the street, on their way to Mr. Frost's farm.

The body was dragged some distance and horribly mangled. Mrs. Frost was completely overcome and may lose her mind.

Medical Examiner Crane ordered McCloud's arrest.

WEST SIDE GROUNDS, Chicago, Oct. 13.—Unless they smashed every precedent up to date, the Cubs were in for a beating from the Sox in the world's series this afternoon. However, the National League champs went into the battle 2 to 1 favorites, and the backers of the Cubs had all the takers they wanted.

A large number of fans went to the park here today cock-sure that the American League team would triumph, as it has been the rule up to date that the visiting nine has won its game on its opponent's grounds. Nevertheless, the supporters of the Spuds were confident that their team would give precedent the go-by and win for the second time in succession.

The men were battling for nothing but glory to-day, as they do not receive a cent of the receipts in the remaining games. However, it is up to them to try their hardest to win, as it will be the nine that captures the majority of contests that will get the hog share of the gate receipts, and also the emblems that go with the winning of the world's championship.

Charley Murphy, the president of the Cubs, was positive that his club would land the big honors. He passed around among his friends, assuring them that the National League team would prove the wonder of baseball.

On the other hand, Charley Comiskey, the head of the Sox outfit, said that the Cubs had nothing on his team, with the series standing two each, and that his nine would finally come out on top.

There was a great outpouring of fans at the local park this afternoon. Fans from near and far, attracted by the titanic struggle for baseball supremacy, crowded every available seat. Enthusiasm knew no bounds, and the fans rent the air with their shouts and exhortations at every opportunity.

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 13.—Yale and Holy Cross lined up at Yale Field for their annual football battle. Yale lost the services of her star quarterback "Tad" Jones, and her regular fullback, Roome, both being out with injuries. Holy Cross, while crippled by the loss of one or two men owing to scholarship difficulties, had a strong team.

The report that seven or eight of the Holy Cross men were disqualified by the faculty for scholarship difficulties was pronounced untrue by those of the team.

MINNIE T. AND BILLY ROSS TO MEET IN RACE

Members of the Chamber of Commerce will be out in force at Charles River Speedway on Friday, October 26, to see decided the match race between A. K. Tupper's mare Minnie T. and H. H. Cook's gelding Billy Ross. The two met in a match last June, when the latter was returned the winner after losing a heat.

Though defeated, Mr. Tupper has never felt satisfied with the verdict, believing he has the fastest trotter. In making the coming race, it is left open for any person to drive the horses, which in the former instance it was for owners to handle the ribbons. To make certain that Minnie T. is in the best possible shape she is now in the training stable of Frank Fox, who will probably do the honors behind her in the race.

Already members of the Chamber of Commerce are taking sides on the question, though the followers of Billy Ross are willing to give odds on his finishing first. The admirers of Minnie T. will wear ribbons of purple, while the friends of Billy Ross tote colors of blue on the day of the race.

RODENBACH AND KELLEY DOWN FOR CHELSEA

Billy Rodenbach and Hugo Kelley may meet in the Lincoln Club ring at the Pythian Rink, Chelsea, in a few weeks. Yesterday the club's representative sent a letter to Rodenbach in New York, asking him to consider such a match. Johnny Mooney, who is Eastern representative for Hugo, has already accepted the match, and suggests that it be at 154 pounds for the middleweight championship now claimed by Kelley.

The Lincoln Club could bill the contest as a championship. Rodenbach, who made a big hit in his bouts at the B. A. A. and in the national championships, would prove a big drawing card, and a bout with Kelley would ensure a fine contest. Kelley's grand, game battle against Sailor Burke gave the Chicago middleweight a big name. As soon as Rodenbach is heard from the match will be arranged.

THE STADIUM, Soldiers Field, Cambridge, Oct. 13.—It was the best football weather of the season served up for the Crimson warriors to show their proficiency over the Amherst Aggies, who came to Cambridge for the first time in football history, but they were looked upon as easy prey for the big, husky pupils of Bill Reid.

Before the whistle blew for the first scrimmage the Aggies were reckoned as vicbeat that score in order to show superiority was inspired by the rumors that Harvard was to spring some additional developments in the gridiron sport which would prove alluring.

The Aggies were defeated by Brown 17 to 0 a week ago, and Harvard was out to beat that score in orde rto show superiority over the Providence college, and the players went at the best speed they were capable of.

Harvard showed a new double pass of the forward variety which was the most complicated yet seen, but its perfect manipulation was somewhat marred by the lack of practice, and it was a dangerous trick to try on the Aggies till the score was placed at a safe margin.

The Amherst team hoped to emulate Bates and cross the Crimson goal line by some miracle, or by catching the Harvard men unawares, and the friends of the team were alert to see something of the unexpected order happen.

With Apollonio and Mason, the regular fullbacks, out of Harvard's backfield, it had some effect on the line-bucking, as Gray, who substituted, lacked the experience of the other two.

On the whole, the team showed several degrees of improvement over its previous form, though the Aggies was not just the team to bring out the real merits.

There were some clever players in the Amherst combination, who shone for individual ability and kept the Harvard men busy watching them.

BASEBALL AS ADE KNOWS IT

CHICAGO, Oct. 13.—"Baseball Abroad" will be the topic of George Ade in responding to a toast at the banquet to be given the Cubs next Tuesday evening at the Auditorium Hotel. "Those Japs," said Mr. Ade, "are bully boys on the bases and they can pitch like a house afire; but when it comes to hitting they are not one, two, eight. The curved ball frightens them." Four hundred seats will be placed at the diamond-shaped table and of this number almost 350 have been engaged.

AL GREGGAINS WORKING HARD WITH CORBETT

BY TAD.

Young Corbett is training at Stratford, Ct., for his battle with Terry McGovern, which takes place in Philadelphia Wednesday night. Alec Greggains is training him. This alone makes the Corbett training stunt an interesting story, for it was Greggains who brought Corbett in line out West when Willie fought Eddie Hanlon and rounded him into shape.

Corbett always was a bad boy in training. He was a pudgy little cuss, always running to fat and the hardest fellow in the world to get in shape. Harry Tuthill and Tim McGrath used to worry their heads off trying to keep him at weight, but somehow or other Willie was always three or four pounds heavier than they wanted him to be and no one ever got on.

He used to train hard. He would run eight and ten miles on the road; but, while doing this, would get ahead of his trainers, and a nice water hydrant and get his fill of water. When the trainers caught up they were none the wiser, but Willie was some the fuller.

At night, after he was in bed, he used to sneak down to the kitchen, cop off a cold chicken, a pie and maybe a few glasses of jelly. In the morning he would tip the beam three pounds more than the [illegible] ever allowed.

They worked him hard and sweated him but not until Greggains got out there with his big pad like a chest protector, did Willie round to. Alec lets the other fellow pound with all his might at this big pad and just blocks and jabs easy, while the other fellow almost breaks his back. It gave Corbett a chance to unlimber himself and punch with his full force. He enjoyed it and got lower and lower in weight until the mark was reached.

The night of that fight, however, he was forced to take off two pounds more and had to run in from Golden Gate Park, a distance of about six miles.

Before the last McGovern fight they had men watching him day and night, for fear he would eat or drink something that was not on the calendar.

Greggains is with Willie again now, and you can bet that if there is a chance for Corbett to get in shape Greggains will do it.

HOPPE WON AGAIN.

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—Willie Hoppe had no trouble in defeating McLaughlin to-night at the Knickerbocker Academy. The score:

Hoppe averaged 14 6-21 with a total of 300.

McLaughlin's total was 169, average 8 9-21.

FALL SERIES OPEN ON THE SPEEDWAY

With thirty-seven horses starting in nine races, taking twenty-five heats to decide, the majority being head and head finishes, the opening of the Fall series of matinees by the Metropolitan Driving Club at Charles River Speedway yesterday afternoon was most auspicious.

It showed the wide interest taken in the matinee racing by the crowd present. Teams lined the boulevard two deep, while spectators filled the footpath adjoining the speedway. Outside of a couple of occasions had there been a larger attendance noted.

There was a tip out that Chief Wilkie, the pacer which captured all of his races in the Spring series, and was returned champion of the course, was to be given a drubbing. Louise E., owned by William Emerson, and driven by Charley Lockwood, was the supposed one to do the trick.

So far as the initial heat of the fast peace was concerned, the prophecy came true, as the sweet-going little mare fairly smothered her distinguished opponent in the fast time of 1:01½. The effort evidently tired her, as in the finish of the next heat Chief Wilkie came to his own again in the final brush. Time, 1:02½. In the last heat the latter had it easily in two seconds slower time, while Early Bird, Jr., defeated Louise E. for the second place. Al Furbush drove the winner with excellent judgment.

In the fast trot quite a body of enthusiasts came over from East Boston to see Frank Burnham's gelding, Bert S., perform. Opposed to him were Henry Whitney's mare, Zambia, champion in the trotting class last Spring, and Curta. When it came to racing the first named had it all his own way, the fastest heat in 1:06. He was handled by W. Gibbons.

A lot of speed was shown in class 7, W. Jameson turning a very clever trick with Ella Hal in straight heats, the best in 1:03½. Marchwood was second each heat, Helen B. third and Red Pepper fourth.

The former champion of the Rochester (N. H.) speedway, Gagnaux, now the property of Al Furbush, walked away with class 1 over Billy Mack, Major and Colbath. His best heat was in 1:01½.

Class 2 was a mixed-up affair, taking four heats before the winner was found in Gwenn P., owned and driven by W. J. Furbush. The second heat was captured by Dash in the best time of the contest, 1:05½. Silver Glow nailed the third in a very slow decision. Wavelite was the other starter.

W. C. Parker had the racing slippers on Pensive Maid in class 8, though it took her four heats to gain the verdict. Tom Drew won the first in 1:06¾, and Billy Ross the next in 1:08¼. The victor's best time was 1:10.

After losing the first heat in class 3 to Platte, M. A. Nevins carried off the blue ribbon with Rob P. The best heat was 1:09¾. Other starters were Alvola and Eddy O. All of the Roxbury boys made Rome howl when Nevins was seen to be winning the final heat.

Monroe Goodspeed came well prepared to head a summary with Frank Petrel. He lost the opener to Chazey Belle, then stepped it off. Best time, 1:08½. Lizabeth B. was third, Minnie T. fourth and Vesper fifth.

Wilkeswood had no bother in class 9, he taking the race off the reel in 1:07¼ and 1:08. Selina was second, William L. third, Nancy Grayson fourth and Broadview Roan fifth.

DOUGHERTY VS. FITZGERALD

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 13.—Jack Dougherty and Willie Fitzgerald have been matched to fight ten rounds here next Friday. This will be the opening bout in the Cream City, and the first one to go the distance of ten rounds. Both boys have gone in training and one of the best fights between welterweights in months is promised. Dougherty is one of the best men of his weight turned out in the Middle West in several years and his only recent defeat was at the hands of Joe Walcott at Boston. Fitzgerald has fought the best in the country and he is sure to give the Milwaukee lad a stiff argument. Ten rounds seem hardly long enough to determine a winner between these fellows.

WANT MEMSIC TO MEET NEARY

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 13.—Manager McCary of the Pacific Athletic Club, has offered a purse for a match between George Memsic, now fighting under the name of Jimmy Burns, and Charley Neary of Milwaukee, for November 13.

Memsic, who is now in Los Angeles, was offered 50 per cent. of the gross receipts of the house, and a telegram was forwarded last night to Neary. The men are to fight at 133 pounds ringside, and a house of at least $6,000 is figured on.

Tommy Burns is backing Memsic and offers any part of $1,000 as a side bet on his man.

SULLIVAN WON IN TWELFTH

LAWRENCE, Oct. 13.—Bartley Connolly of Portland, Me., met Tommy Sullivan of Lawrence, last night before the Unity Club and Sullivan received the decision at the end of the twelfth round after a hard, but one-sided fight. There was not a round that Sullivan did not have the upper hand. In the eleventh round Connolly had a hard time staying the round out. He held in the clinches, while Sullivan fought with both hands free. Connolly proved a glutton for punishment and Sullivan proved very adept in giving it. Three preliminaries preceded the main event. Young Mulvey and Billie Butler, both of Lawrence, fought a six-round draw; Young Clark of Lawrence beat George Raymond of of Lawrence defeated George Gans of Haverhill in four rounds.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 13.—The local Americans won their third victory over the St. Louis Nationals yesterday 4 to 3 in eleven innings.

Notes of the Harness Horses

Millie Sayles, the Attleboro breeder and trainer, states that he has had no bother getting the mare Nellie May, dam of three in the 2:30 list and sister to Helena, 2:11¼, by Electioneer, in foal every season since he has owned her. The late J. Malcolm Forbes only sold the mare because she was not a regular breeder for him. One of Nellie May's that Sayles has is the five-year-old stallion, Baron May, that raced so well at the Rochester and Brockton fairs, getting a record of 2:20¼.

* * *

J. W. Wakeman of Jersey City, N. J., rises to remark that in the catalogue of the Tranter-Kenney Company sale at Readville in May, 1904, the famous trotter Nutbov, 2:07¼, was consigned by the Palace Farm, Woodbury, N. J., with the following description: "He is well broken, easy to drive, does not pull or shy. Driven by an amateur, he has shown a quarter to road cart in 33 seconds, can brush a 2:10 gait. His manners, speed and disposition make him an ideal road horse. He is city broken, very gentle and has no faults." To this Mr. Wakeman remarks that if Nutbov really was such a vicious, erratic, ungovernable brute, as he has been painted, what a monumental liar the author of that statement must be.

* * *

Strathberry, 2:04¼, that at one time looked to be a candidate for the pacing stallion championship, died last month at Centerville, Ia. Eleven of his get have standard records.

* * *

Parthenia, owned by General W. B. Chisholm, Cleveland, and winner of one of the intercity events at the recent Readville matinee, will be extensively entered in the rich stakes in the Grand Circuit next year. She is four years old, and has been miles around 2:11.

Out in California the green pacer Titus, brother of Direct, 2:05½, has been a mile in 2:04¼, and is header for the Grand Circuit next season in the slow pacing stakes.

TRIBUTE PAID E. A. GILMORE

BY J. C. KERRISON.

Some half-hundred members of the Bay State Automobile Association gathered around the festal board at the Copley Square Hotel last evening, and paid high tribute to the good fellowship and business ability of E. A. Gilmore, who has been called from Boston to accept a lucrative position with the White Company in New York city. Mr. Gilmore, as one of the founders of the association and a member of the present board of directors, has been unceasing in his endeavors to place the association in the high position it now enjoys. Believing that tribute should be paid the worthy, while they themselves may enjoy the same, the members of the association arranged for this dinner. And it was a tribute such a one as is seldom paid to living men. Words of commendation and eulogy were heard on every hand and "Gil" truly felt that he was in the home of his friends, and while appreciative of the good fortune that awaited him in the great Metropolis he must have felt that it was worth something to have lived and labored among such a field of good fellows, such as those who surrounded him last evening. Mr. J. H. MacAlman, as chairman of the entertainment committee, acted as toastmaster, and right fittingly did he fulfil the exacting duties of the position. President L. R. Speare, of the association, was first called upon to open the postprandial exercises, and then almost every man around the board expressed himself. The real gem of the evening, the benediction, if such it can be called, made by the guest, Mr. E. A. Gilmore, who spoke feelingly of his connection with the local trade, and said that he felt more than repaid for his labors by the generous expression of opinion made during the evening. Almost every man present had something nice to say, and after wishing Gilmore the greatest of success and the singing of "He's a Jolly Good Fellow," the dinner came to an end. Those present were L. R. Speare, H. R. Teele, I. Fortescue, Al Measure, J. H. MacAlman, R. H. Ross, G. L. Munroe, E. A. Gilmore, George A. Crittenden, Clarence Gilmore, G. A. Campbell, H. L. Johnson, L. R. Butler, George J. Quinsler, H. G. Fisk, George W. McNear, Z. H. Ayers, C. J. Bailey, C. E. Whitten, J. L. Russell, Charles Waugh, George H. Lowe, Colonel H. G. Kemp, Harry Fosdick, E. S. Breed, W. T. Helfer, Watson Coleman, A. P. Underhill, L. L. MacAnaney, S. K. Dingle, Howard G. Reynolds, C. F. Whitney, J. D. Murphy, N. R. Buxton, J. A. Davis, V. A. Charles, Howard Linnie, V. A. Nelson, C. G. Some New England automobilists witnessed the Vanderbilt trial but a great many more saw the final. C. S. Henshaw, who has had much experience in motor car racing, in answer to a question, recently said: "The Vanderbilt race attracts world wide attention it is true, but after witnessing the elimination trial, I decided to be absent from the course the day of the final, and, by the way, it is the first one missed by me." Admitting that the race is interesting from a spectacular point of view, because of the manifold danger of some driver being killed or mortally injured over the treacherous stretch with its numerous turns, I cannot see where it benefits the automobile industry, because with one or possibly two exceptions the machines are exclusively of racing type construction, built at an expense of thousands of dollars. True that the derangement of any function of the racing car may lose a chance for the cup, or hurl the driver of the car into eternity, and that the manufacturer of the car is called upon to show his ability as a successful builder, still the fact remains that these machines are made piece by piece with unusual care and are not the kind offered on the open market." Mr. Henshaw said, "I believe that if touring cars of regular construction were substituted, carrying passengers or weight, a speed would be obtained to suit the most exacting, and that their worth would be proved because the successful machines would be taxed to the limit, both for speed, reliability and endurance."

American Men Don't Like Women Who Smoke and Drink

By Beatrice Fairfax

"OH, yes, the English women smoke on trains, but only women of the upper class," said the manager of an English railroad, who is travelling in this country.

It is a well-known fact that English women and women of the Continent smoke a great deal.

That this detestable habit should be confined to what is called the "upper class" is distinctly complimentary to all women who are outside the pale of that magic circle.

Women of wealth and fashion are guilty of many foolish fads and habits, and smoking is about the most harmful and unlovely of them all.

In this country comparatively few women smoke, and one reason for their abstinence is that men so heartily abhor the habit that it takes a brave woman to go contrary to their opinions.

Wrong Ideas

SOME girls have an idea that it is fashionable and worldly to smoke; they imagine that society women do it, and they want to be up to date and smart also.

But I can assure you, girls, that the well-bred woman of society do not smoke. It is a filthy, abominable habit, and one which I hope none of you will ever be tempted to indulge in.

A man once said to me: "If girls only knew how thoroughly disenchanting it is to smell cigarette smoke on a woman or to see her fingers stained yellow from nicotine, they would never smoke. Thank goodness," he went on to say, "it is a habit which very few American women form."

You see, the men of America have placed their womenkind upon a lofty standard and the women must do their best to live up to it.

Men Despise It

DRINKING and smoking are two things that American men cannot stand for. Cigarette smoking spoils the teeth, affects the breath and ruins the complexion by making it sallow and unhealthy looking.

In Italy I have seen women in cafes smoking big black cigars, and you can imagine how very unattractive the sight was.

Women of the so-called "upper class" ought to be ashamed of themselves for setting an example so pernicious.

Fortunately the American girl is a girl of sound sense and has her own ideas on the fitness of things. When once she realizes that the smoking habit is not a refined or lady-like one, all the example in the world would not lead her into acquiring it.

The idea of a pretty, sweet girl marring her sweetness by puffing at a cigarette is a very painful one.

Don't for one moment be led astray by the thought that you are adding to your attractiveness by smoking.

You are detracting from it seriously, and there is not one man in a hundred but who will agree with me.

WHITE ALASKAN FOX WILL BE FASHIONABLE FUR THIS YEAR

Takes Eight Foxes to Make One Full Set

FOR evening wear this Winter many society women will be seen with white fox stole and muff. A scarcity of the white fox has already induced society women to place their orders with their fur dealer.

The white fox stole and muff came on the market three years ago. The white fox is to be found in Alaska. Hunters of late years have been careless with the game, and a large amount of the fur has been lost.

Eight foxes have to be sacrificed to gratify my lady's fancy for a set of these furs. At present the manufacturer is receiving from $200 to $275 for a set of these furs.

In the accompanying cut the stole is eighty inches from end to end, is adorned by four tails and two natural fox heads. It is lined with white satin or white brocade. It is eight inches wide and the stole is valued at $140.

The muff is made naturally, with two foxes. It is valued at $60.

Two fox skins are used perfectly flat and sewed together. The heads are not removed from the skin and the tails are allowed to remain. The front paws of the fox remain, giving the muff two heads, two tails and four paws. The muff is larger than the ordinary size and is lined with white satin or white brocade and has a fur lined pocket.

Jane Is 24 Years, Little Eva Is 3; Easy, Wasn't It?

WELL, the mystery of Jane's age is solved at last. She's just 24 years and her youngest sister, Eva, is 3 years old.

Hundreds of correct answers were received by the Puzzle Editor. Many thousands came far from the mark. The most common error was in allowing 15 intervals of one and one-half years between the 15 children, instead of 14 intervals or 21 years.

The correct solution was reached in a dozen different ways, common sense, diagrams, plain figuring, arithmetical progression, elimination, proportion, algebra and what not.

The thousand's who missed the mark arrived at answers from 12 years to 90 years by mysterious ways that were dark and devious.

The Puzzle Editor gives the correct answer to end the suspense, in response to hundreds of eager requests.

Here are some of the solutions received yesterday.

Jane Symonds is twenty-two years old, and her little sister Eva is two years nine months and twenty-two and one-half days old.

MRS. A. TEELING.

Eva is two years nine months twelve and six-sevenths days, and Jane is twenty-two years three months and twelve and six-sevenths days.

L. T. HERRMANN.
U. S. S. Rhode Island.

Jane's age is twenty-five years eight months and eighteen days. Eva is three years two months and eighteen days.

Box 779, Maynard. HANS LIND.

Jane is 24 years old. Eva is 3 years old.

EDWARD D. DOYLE.
Dorchester.

Jane's age is 21 years. Her youngest sister's age is 2 years 7 months 2 weeks 4 days 3 hours 7 minutes ½ second.

JOHN J. DINEEN.
Durham street, Lawrence.

According to my estimation Jane is 22 years 6 months.

GEORGE P. HARRIS.
No. 185 South Main street, Attleboro.

Jane is just twenty-four years old, and her little sister Eva is three.

MARY PELLETIER.
No. 48 Barnes street, Fall River.

On the day Jane Symonds was on the witness stand she was twenty-two years and six months old. Her sister Eva was two years and nine months.

JOHN McSWAIN.
No. 26 Waldron street, Marblehead.

Jane is twenty-one years old. Eva is two years seven months and two weeks.

MRS. NELLIE E. DODGE.
No. 94 Livingstone street, Providence, R. I.

Jane is just twenty-one years five months twenty days and sixteen hours. Eva is just two years eight months seven days and fourteen hours. I can prove it.

One Woman Gives Many Reasons Why She's Glad She's a Woman

By Caroline

THERE are so many reasons why, being a woman, I prefer to be a woman that it is difficult to condense them. One could write a whole chapter, and cap it with a verse, on just the charm of being a woman.

Think of all the brilliant, inconsequent things you may say if you are a woman! A man is tied down by his avoirdupois masculine intelligence into saying what he means, but what woman worth her salt ever says what she means? It is such an ordinary, humdrum way of going through life; it leaves so little to the imagination—and if half the sorrow of the world lies in imagination, so surely does half the joy.

I believe it is true that even in this enlightened century there are retrogrades among us who cling to the old shibboleth that they would rather be men. Away with them, I say! They would lower a flag that has led this dear old world to its present pitch of strenuous endeavor.

Would the centuries have echoed with the song of heroes marching to victory if God had made the world without a woman in it? Half the valiant deeds of men have been done for the love of some particular woman. Who would despise the honor of being a star of destiny to a human soul?

Our daily life is a round of little griefs and small delights. I prefer to be a woman because to me the sheltered side of the world is offered. I do not want to be a straphanger. It would cut me to the heart if on entering the crowded carriage a man considered me so much his equal that he neglected to offer me his seat.

Of all the learned professions that are crowded by men, there is none that I pine to enter. I do not want to be a successful barrister, on whose soul-stirring eloquence hangs the life of some poor wretch accused of dread crime; I do not want to be an eminent surgeon, with a cure for every horrible disease that is known to man; I do not want to be a politician and statesman, to be pilloried in every opposition newspaper of the day.

I acknowledge that it is sometimes difficult to discover where the luck comes in in being born a girl when you are the eldest of eight in a house where there is not enough money to go round. It is annoying on school holidays, when you want to read your favorite story in your favorite paper, to find that there is always the latest baby but one to be washed and dressed and taken out in the family perambulator. But babies grow up, and boys become men, and the girl who has helped a pack of unruly young brothers to battle with lessons too hard for them, who has shared their pastimes and listened to their confidences, is apt to reap her reward later in a wider sympathy with, and a more complete understanding of, human nature than is ever given to a man.

I prefer to be a woman for a thousand reasons. Here are just a few of them. If a woman's brain is not so heavy as that of a man's, it is of finer quality; if her reason is not so great, her wit is more subtle; if her power of accumulating knowledge is less, her instinct, which enables her to dispense with it, is finer. A man will search and probe for the truth—and still doubt; a woman knows when it is there. The finest men of the age—men of action, of song and story, in imagination and insight, in sympathy and tenderness—have all had something of the woman in them. Man is, and always must be, an individualist; he battles for his own. But if, as the preachers and philosophists tell us, the world is built on sacrifice, it is a woman's honor and her glory that lead the way.

Cook Book for Best "Economy" Recipes

THE writer of every recipe printed below receives a copy of the BOSTON AMERICAN Economy Cook Book, a substantial indexed blankbook of 120 pages, bound in heavy oilcloth, especially designed to preserve these recipe gems in permanent form.

Write out your favorite household and cooking secrets, and win one of these books. They are well worth having.

CORNMEAL GEMS

ONE cup cornmeal, two cups flour, three teaspoons baking powder, one teaspoon salt, two tablespoons sugar, one and one-half cups of milk and one egg, well beaten. Sift cornmeal, flour, salt, sugar and baking powder together. Add gradually egg and milk and one tablespoon of melted butter. Bake in hot buttered pans twenty-five minutes.

"SHADOWS OF NEW YORK"

CHAPTER CXXVI.—Continued

Copyright, 1906, by American-Journal-Examiner

"I'VE had as much o' this as I can stand. There's some rat poison that I'll give that dog a dose of," he said, lighting a lamp as he spoke. "Hanged if it don't set all my nerves a quivering to hear the brute. A stiff dose of rat poison on a bit of meat ought to settle his hash!"

He walked out of the room, holding the lighted candle.

And at that very instant a face was being pressed to the window pane outside, peering in upon them through the crevice at the side where the blind fitted badly.

The face of a man who, knowing that the front of the house would inevitably be watched, had come by the river, in a little boat, which he had moored by the steps of the wharf—who had crept stealthily through the darkness across the narrow strip of yard to the window.

The man drew out a strong clasp knife, and—careful to make no sound—inserted it between the sashes of the window frame; exerting all his force, he pushed back the catch.

It sprang back with a sudden rattle that made Mrs. Rumfit almost jump out of her chair with fright and utter a piercing cry.

She heard the window thrown up, and the next moment a man had clambered swiftly into the room—the man she feared.

"The Farmer!" she gasped.

CHAPTER CXXVII.

A Devil's Deed

AT this sudden appearance of Marr a look of wild terror betrayed itself in Mrs. Rumfit's face. She remembered his threat—realized instantly why the hunted man had come back.

A broken, inarticulate cry escaped her; then she tried to shout out to warn her husband, who had just gone out of the room with the lighted lamp; but Marr gave her no time; he was close upon her, and his hand savagely gripped her skinny throat.

"If you dare to give the alarm or attempt to betray me, it'll be as much as your life's worth! I'll serve you as I served Parslow!" he said in a low, menacing voice, his dark, threatening face close to hers.

He flung her roughly from him, and the woman collapsed in violent hysterics on a chair, yelling and screaming, as Marr rushed out into the shop, where he saw the man who had betrayed him moving among the furniture, holding the lighted lamp, that cast fantastic shapes of shadows as he walked.

Marr's face was distorted with a black passion of fury as his eyes fell on the figure of the "fence."

He owed it to this man that the police were on his track, that he was a desperate fugitive fleeing for his life; how sweet it would be to revenge himself on this informer!

He would have his revenge and then he would take what money and valuables he could lay his hands on and would fly, as he had come, by the silent highway, whose darkness would hide his flight. But his revenge first!

As he ran out of the back parlor Rumfit, alarmed by the sound of footsteps and his wife's screaming, turned and saw the man, and a vertigo seemed to seize him. He stood facing Marr as if rooted to the spot, his knees knocking together, and an abject terror stamped on his colorless face.

"You Judas, I told you I should come back!" cried Marr.

Battle and Flames

There was a sudden crash.

The lamp had fallen from the old receiver's palsied hand; it struck the floor with a shiver of glass. It was a cheap lamp; the well broke into fragments and the oil streamed out, igniting, and ran in thin, blazing rivulets over the floor, creeping like fireships carried down a tideway among the stacked worm-eaten lumber in the shop.

At the sight of the man he hated all prudence, all other considerations, were sponged from Marr's mind by the intensity of his fury; he could think only of his revenge upon the informer; heedless of the blazing oil he flung himself on Rumfit.

The "fence," abject craven though he was, was galvanized into defending himself, though his blood ran like water.

In spite of his bulk and his cowardice he was a strong man, and the look on his antagonist's face told him that he would need all his strength; that unless he fought for his life his fate would be that of Parslow. Instantly the two men were locked in a desperate struggle.

All about them was a strange crackling sound, as the streams of blazing oil washed the inflammable stuff with which the shop was packed.

An old sedan chair, riddled with worms, crackled into flame; tables and chairs, dry as tinder, the flames shot round them, biting with fierce, red teeth into the rotten wood; a painted mummy from Egypt, that as it began to burn filled the air with a strange odor of resin and spices, once caught by the flames blazed fiercely; and by the glare the two men swayed and fought.

For the time Marr was as a maniac. He had forgotten all questions of his personal safety; his mad flight from the police, his disappointment at being balked of George Desmond's plunder, the shock of the falling roof that had nearly crushed him, Hagar's refusal of shelter; all this had preyed on the man till his mind was almost unhinged; and his hatred of the informer to whom he owed his present condition had blazed out red as the crackling fires about him, blinding him to everything but his hunger for revenge on the traitor.

Deadly Peril

But Rumfit realized fully the deadly peril that threatened both of them.

As he struggled and writhed he yelled out desperately to his antagonist that they would be roasted alive; but Marr did not seem to hear.

He was putting forth a supreme effort to beat down the other's resistance, to get his hands about the man's throat. But terror seemed to have lent Rumfit unusual strength. He knew he was fighting for his life; and Marr's wrist was caught in a grip that the man could not shake off.

Mrs. Rumfit came out of her hysterical fit in the back parlor to hear her husband's cries, to see the red glare of the mounting flames and the smoke that filled the place.

Almost demented with terror, the woman rushed shrieking along the passage out into the dark, quiet street. So far the fire in the shop had not been observed; the road was deserted.

As she opened the door the dog that had been barking furiously dashed into the passage past her, almost sweeping her off her feet. She recovered her balance and ran wildly up the road screaming.

The dog raced down the passage into the shop, to be met by a thin stream of fire creeping along to the staircase, shutting him off from the further end of the shop, where his master was, driving the creature back.

In its haste to reach Marr the dog jumped on to a stack of piled-up furniture, springing from one article to another; then missed its balance and fell on the other side, to find itself imprisoned—shut in on every side by an impassable wall of high wardrobe and bookcases.

As Mrs. Rumfit rushed up the street shrieking hysterically a patrolman came running down, alarmed by the cries; saw the ruddy glare in the shop through the spy-hole cut in the blind of the large window—saw outlined against the red glow and smoke the figures of two men fighting like savage beasts.

Dash to Escape

The fire was gaining a rapid hold—there was so much wood dry as tinder in the old place; it had run along to the staircase, caught the moth-eaten curtains hanging by the side of the stairs, which burst into a sheet of flame; it swept fiercely like the wave of a red sea about the cluster of grandfather clocks that stood in a recess half-way up the stairs, and out of the roaring bonfire, in which the brass dials glowed, one of the clocks suddenly struck, as though it was screaming out in agony.

The policeman had pushed open the door and rushed in.

But before he could reach the two struggling figures, Marr had beaten down Rumfit's weakening grip; the horror of that red glare in his eyes had suddenly recalled him to his senses, to a realization of the imminent danger. With a desperate effort he flung his exhausted antagonist off among a heap of antiques which the creeping fires were already licking, and, panting and breathless, made a dash for escape.

WOMEN CAN'T CUT DIAMONDS

"A LOT of women seem to be possessed these days of an ambition to learn the trade of diamond cutting," said a well-known jeweler. "Every little while applicants for situations as apprentices call. But we can't afford to give them a trial. They can never master the art. In other branches of the jewelry trade women have made unqualified successes.

"There is not one of Eve's daughters, from royalty down, that isn't an artist in the wearing of diamonds. Many are well versed in the art of buying and selling them, while others give excellent satisfaction in polishing and repairing them for the market. But when it comes to the real cutting of the stones they lack the patience, judgment and steadiness of nerve which constitute the expert's stock-in-trade."

Immense Song "Hit," 15c.

GOOD-BYE GLORY!

People have often asked if there would ever again be composed another "war" song, with as much charm and simple beauty as the immense song successes, "Blue Bell," and "Dolly Gray." Joel Cerin has decisively answered the question with "Good-Bye, Glory," one of the richest songs in melody, feeling and delicate sentiment ever composed on the "soldier boy." "Glory" is not only the name of a flag, but of a girl, and the story of them both is told in this, the most beautiful song of love and patriotism. "Good-Bye, Glory," is one of the most sensational song "hits" of the day—this we absolutely guarantee. To satisfy yourself, merely fill out the coupon below, clip and return with remittance, at our special cut price of only 15c. and secure this beautiful love-war song. Clip the coupon below, now—TO-DAY.

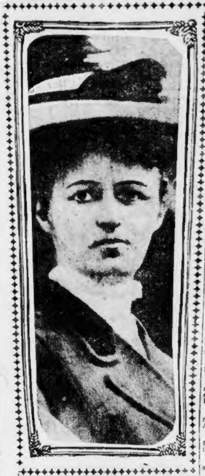
BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN

THIS WEEK'S SHOPPING PHOTOS IDENTIFIED DAILY



The Original of This Snapshot Will Receive a Prize of $2.

First Four Printed Were Claimed Almost as Soon as They Appeared.

THE Camera Man has been followed very closely by women shoppers this week. The photographs printed on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday were promptly identified almost within twenty-four hours of the time they appeared in the BOSTON AMERICAN.

There has scarcely been time to allow the original of yesterday's snapshot to appear and claim the award of $2. And to-day's photo—well, here it is. Of course it's an unknown quantity.

The names of the first three lucky winners of this week have been published. The original of Thursday's snapshot was Miss Olive S. Horie of Liberty street, South Braintree. She received the award of $2.

Keep your eyes on the Camera Man. You can't tell when he'll get you.

HEARST'S BOSTON AMERICAN

WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST

80 AND 82 SUMMER ST., BOSTON, OCTOBER 13, 1906

TO MEN THAT ADVERTISE REAL ESTATE

An Experiment in the SUNDAY AMERICAN That SHOULD Interest and MAY INSTRUCT You

We have told real estate and other advertisers that, for the intelligent man WHO HAS SOMETHING TO SAY, the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN is the best possible medium FOR APPEALING TO THE BIGGEST PUBLIC.

To-day we speak especially to the man who advertises real estate. That man is going to be a constantly increasing factor in commercial life for some time to come—as long as the impending extraordinary development in real estate values all over the country shall last.

The SUNDAY AMERICAN is THE MEDIUM FOR REAL ESTATE ADVERTISEMENTS.

BECAUSE:

On Sunday morning the husband and wife, planning for a home and wise investment combined, have time to talk it all over—there is nothing for them to do on Sunday—it is a holiday.

And BECAUSE on Sunday many men have their weekly salaries, received the night before, and—money suggesting money—the question of investment naturally comes up.

And BECAUSE on Sunday morning the husband and wife talk over the real estate opportunity that they see before them at that very moment, advertised in the SUNDAY AMERICAN THAT VERY DAY and THAT VERY MOMENT.

And BECAUSE they decide to go and look over the ground, and investigate that very day—Sunday.

They do not wait a day, nor a week. They go and look at the advertised real esate THERE and THEN.

And BECAUSE the advertiser in the SUNDAY AMERICAN is the EARLIEST KIND of an early bird. He attracts attention through the SUNDAY AMERICAN, which has the largest kind of a circulation, larger than half the other Sunday newspapers COMBINED.

He interests his public on the day they wish to become interested; on the day they have time to look at his land. He has his possible customers thoroughly interested on the day they can decide on purchasing. He shows them his land early on SUNDAY, and on Monday—if the proposition is fair to both sides—the business is done.

The SUNDAY AMERICAN is the best medium for ALL intelligent advertisers at present.

BECAUSE:

On that day the circulation is bigger than on any other day.

BECAUSE on that day the advertisements in the paper are unusually conspicuous.

We have told advertisers, and real estate advertisers especially, that the SUNDAY AMERICAN is THE medium for them to use. This we say in THEIR interest. It makes no difference to this newspaper what day men advertise.

But we want to see the business men, whose energy alone makes the modern newspaper possible, get the fullest RESULT from their investment—just as we want to see readers get the best possible result from THEIR investment, in real estate or otherwise.

Buyers can investigate for themselves the opportunity that is offered them.

And ADVERTISERS can investigate for themselves the opportunity that is offered to them through the SUNDAY AMERICAN.

Contributions to the Campaign Fund

They Will Be Gladly Received by the Independence League

Money is needed in a campaign—for legitimate purposes.

Halls must be hired, typewriters paid, postage stamps bought.

Most of the men on the Independence League ticket are men of small means, unable to compete financially even to the extent of legitimate expenditure with their opponents who represent the trusts, and have the trusts' funds behind them.

If you care to contribute $1 or ten cents, or a thousand dollars to this campaign—WHICH IS YOUR CAMPAIGN—the money will be thankfully received, carefully and legitimately expended and accounted for.

Checks or cash contributions in registered letters or postal orders should be addressed as follows:

J. F. Davis, Secretary-Treasurer,
Independence League Headquarters,
Winthrop Building, Boston, Mass.

All contributions will be acknowledged in this newspaper IF THE CONTRIBUTOR SO REQUESTS.

Otherwise, acknowledgment will be made privately by mail.

There are many citizens who will be glad to feel that they have made some sacrifice toward the election of the ticket.

East Boston Demands a Square Deal.

ATTORNEY-General Dana Malone, who receives $5,000 a year for acting as lawyer for the people of this Commonwealth, has decided that the 52,000 citizens of East Boston who seek to prevent the Dock Trust and the combined Gaston interests from converting the streets in that section of Boston into railway switching yards, have no rights which he is bound by his oath of office to recognize.

The people of East Boston asked that the Attorney-General, THEIR LEGAL AGENT, lay the Dock Trust controversy before the Supreme Court for a settlement. There the Dock Trust lawyers could argue their case side by side with the Attorney-General and other lawyers representing the people.

Former Attorney-General Parker has stated that the people of East Boston have right and justice on their side. Attorney-General Malone has said "No." Unless he reconsiders his decision, as he has given his promise to do, and takes up the cause of the people of East Boston, the Dock Trust may proceed to lay its tracks, and the Gaston interests may proceed to lay tracks in a complete belt around East Boston.

The Commonwealth has spent since 1890 $27,000,000 in an effort to wipe out deadly grade crossing. OF THIS, $1,500,000 HAS BEEN SPENT IN EAST BOSTON ALONE.

The people of East Boston are fighting to keep their streets clear of railway tracks, to keep them safe places on which men and women and children may travel. They have a right to be heard in their effort to protect their property and their lives.

The people contend that the Dock Trust franchise is dead, that it was killed by Mayor Collins's veto, and that the Board of Aldermen, as shown by the city records, failed to pass the measure over the Mayor's veto.

They ask that the Attorney-General grant them public hearings, at which the records may be presented, and the City Clerk may be heard. They feel confident that the evidence, MOST OF WHICH HAS NEVER BEEN PRESENTED, will prove to the Attorney-General that it is his DUTY to lay the case before the Supreme Court.

The people of East Boston ask a SQUARE DEAL, Mr. Attorney-General.

HELLO MILLIONBUCKS. YOU LOOK BUSY.
BUSY IS NO NAME FOR IT. SAY HALL-ROOM, DO YOU WORK A TYPE-WRITER? I HAD TO SEND MY STENOGRAPHER HOME WITH A SICK HEAD-ACHE. IF YOU COULD WRITE THIS OUT FOR ME, IT WOULD BE A GREAT FAVOR, AS IT IS VERY IMPORTANT. YOU CAN GO IN THE PRIVATE OFFICE. HERE'S HER NOTES.
SURE! I'LL DO IT WITH PLEASURE.
2
GEE PERC. YOU'VE PUT YOUR FOOT IN IT NOW. WHAT DO YOU KNOW ABOUT TYPE-WRITING AND SHORT-HAND?
TUT-TUT-FERDIE. NOT SO FAST. REMEMBER THAT SWELL STENOGRAPHER DOWN IN THE MAIN HALL? WE'LL GET HER TO STRIKE IT OFF FOR US. IT WON'T COST MUCH. BESIDES WE'LL MAKE A HIT WITH HER AND GET OURSELVES SOLID WITH MILLIONBUCKS.
3
AH - MISS, WILL YOU KINDLY TYPE-WRITE THESE SHORT-HAND NOTES FOR ME. MY STENOGRAPHER WAS TAKEN SICK, AND I HAD TO SEND HER HOME. VERY UNFORTUNATE TOO, AS THEY RELATE TO STATE STREET MATTERS, AND I MUST HAVE THEM ATTENDED TO IMMEDIATELY.
HOPE MORGAN LOOKS ON THE PROJECT FAVORABLY.
YES SIR.

SAY PERC, DON'T YOU THINK WE HAD BETTER LET ROCKABILT IN ON THAT DEAL WITH HARRIMAN?
IS THAT 10 OR 100 SHARES OF ILLINOIS CENTRAL?
AH-ER. 100 TO BE SURE.
5
SAY HALL-ROOM, I'VE BEEN LOOKING ALL OVER THE BUILDING FOR YOU. MY TIME IS TOO VALUABLE TO BE SPENT IN THIS MANNER. I THOUGHT YOU COULD TYPE-WRITE, OTHERWISE I WOULDN'T HAVE ASKED YOU TO DO IT. MY STENOGRAPHER HAS SENT A SUBSTITUTE, SO YOU NEED NOT PUT YOURSELF TO FURTHER TROUBLE.

Ella Wheeler Wilcox

She Describes a Dance Which She Saw in Paris as a Personification of an Oriental Religion

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Copyright, 1906, by American-Journal-Examiner

DANCING has always appealed to me as one of the most beautiful methods of expressing the poetry and joy of life.

It ranks in my mind with painting, sculpture, literature and music.

I can recall but one American woman who has created a new thing in any of the arts distinctly and exquisitely new and that one—Loie Fuller, with her wonderful fire and calla lily dances.

When "The Man" and I arrived in Paris it was our intention to see all that was interesting on the French stage in the way of dancing, and to be amused, pleased, shocked or entertained, as the result might be.

One sultry September night, after we had unpacked our trunks, we set out for a stroll down the boulevards, and, seeing many people enter a music hall and purchase tickets, we followed and obtained excellent seats from which we watched an amusing farce and some special features with only idle curiosity.

Then suddenly we became alert. The unusual stage setting attracted our attention, and we procured a programme and found that we were to see the beautiful dance poem, the "Rhada," created, or rather evolved, by an American girl, Miss Ruth Dennis.

Really Uplifting

I HAD heard much of this dance, but had never seen it, and now, here in Paris, where I had expected to witness only suggestive and risque dances, I was treated to one of the most delightful enjoyments of my life in watching a wholesome and charming American girl float through her exquisite creation.

The "Rhada" is a dance and a hymn, a prayer, a picture and an epic poem, all in one.

It affected "The Man" like a magic spell, and rendered him oblivious to all mundane things, even my own presence, while it was being performed.

It filled him with a desire for a life of calm contemplation and spiritual evolution.

"It is better than a sermon and greater than any sacred music ever sung or played," he said when it was over. Which is an unusual remark to hear coming out of a Parisian music and dance hall, surely.

So interested were we in this colorful and artistic creation that I asked Miss Dennis to come and talk to me about her work. She came, and I found her a sweet, brave American girl, with marked intellectual development, born and bred in Somerville, N. J., and devoted to the profession of her choice since early girlhood.

Europe Thrilled

SHE had dreamed of doing something distinctive, something worth while, ever since she could remember, and so, with this desire always in mind, the "Rhada" had been evolved after two years' concentration and study.

It all came about in a very simple, yet very wonderful way, and because of her own deep earnestness and unswerving devotion to her ideal, and because she put the very best of herself into her work. The public was electrified by her finished creation when it was produced in America.

It was new, it was poetical, it was an appeal to the soul as well as to the eye.

Now Europe is thrilled with it.

It has been tremendously successful in Paris, and Berlin and Monte Carlo are clamoring for it. King Edward has given his word of approval, and laurels are falling on the fair brow of the slender American dancer, who becomes in her work the personification of the spirit of the Ancient Religion of India, the religion which has degenerated, as do all religions eventually, but which in its purity held the essence of all Truth, all Knowledge.

So here is another woman who has created a new thing in art, and again in the realm of Terpsichore.

Let her name go into the Hall of Fame.

She has elevated her art and given the world a beautiful work.

October

By Harry B. Metcalf

SHE'S glad, not sober nor sad October,
Her song is a song of cheer;
Gauzes of red and of russet robe her
As radiant queen of the year.
Torch of the sumach is lifted to light her
Fair feet o'er the harvest sod—
And ever was badge of a sovereign brighter
Than sceptre of goldenrod?
The breadth of her bounty all nature embraces;
She kindles men's hearts with bliss;
So beauteous her face is, the Summer retraces
Her footsteps for just one kiss!
